JANE HARRIS HURT IN FALL

Mrs. Harry Harris — formerly Jane Thurston, daughter of the noted magician—is in Mercy Hospital suffering, she told inquirers, from spinal injuries she received in a fall down stair at her home, Harris Terrace, Crafton. Her husband is the son of the late Senator John P. Harris.

Mrs. Harris, over the telephone, said:

"It isn't much of a story. I just tripped and fell down the stairs from the second floor. It is a minor spine injury and I expect to be out of the hospital in a few days."

The Harrises were reconciled after a separation, about a month ago.

SPEED VOTE RECOUNT TO AID QUIZ

BULLETIN.

Judges Moore and Marshall, in charge of the returning board, today granted an order on petitions from representatives of the "Independent" faction of the Republican party to have the board recount the ballots in all 11 districts of the Third Ward. The voting machines were ordered brought before the board tomorrow, when the first will be tabulated.

Allegheny County's battle to purge itself of the ballot frauds and election thieveries, which it repudiated so vigorously in Tuesday's voting, moved steadily forward to day with the following developments:

1—It was learned the Recount Board would be appointed late today and start work tomorrow. A corps of clerks will be assigned to the board to expedite its count of the ballots, thus making the boxes available quickly for grand jury inspection.

2—Locks on 104 ballot boxes were gone, broken or useless as deputy sheriffs impounded all of the county's 932.

3—District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced that "about 900" subpenas had been issued for witnesses as the grand jury prepared late today to resume its investigation into charges that supporters of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong either stole or attempted to steal the nomination of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern for their apparently defeated candidate.

4—Judges James V. Moore and Elder W. Marshall, in charge of the Returning Board, discovered several "discrepancies" and "inconsistences" in tally sheet and ordered election boards of the affected districts brought before them.

District Attorney Park said that many of the 900 witnesses under subpena for the grand jury were minority election inspectors in the 932 voting districts.

TALLY SHEETS CALLED

Every minority inspector in the county, he said, had either been subpenaed or requested by letter to appear before the jury with the duplicate tally sheet showing vote totals compiled by the election boards at the polls Tuesday.

These totals are to be checked, Park said, against those which eventually were given to the returning board, now in the third day of its count, for certification as official.

Other witnesses, it was learned, were to be called in hopes of obtaining definite information of charges that Armstrong faction "night riders" swept through the Commissioner's controlled districts late Tuesday and early Wednesday, "stuffing" ballot boxes for their candidate and mutilating or destroying ballots which favored McGovern.

Congressman Harry A. Estep, Armstrong's campaign manager, Friday claimed the returning board's official count would give Armstrong the nomination by 4,000 votes. McGovern was leading at that time by approximately 2,400 votes on the face of unofficial but reliable figures. It was Estep's claim which precipitated the grand jury investigation.

When the jury reconvened after

THREE BANKS HERE CLOSE DOORS

Clearing House to Advance 50 Per Cent on Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., Funds

The Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., 226 Fourth Avenue, and two smaller institutions were unable to open their doors for business today.

Clearing House member banks agreed to advance 50 per cent of the deposits of the Bank of Pittsburgh on receiver's certificates as soon as they can be issued. It is understood that this will be extended to cover deposits of other closed banks.

Heavy withdrawals by out of town banks made the closing of the downtown bank necessary to protect depositors.

This action involved the Highland National Bank, 6102 Penn avenue, an affiliated institution, and forced a similar step at the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, Twenty-eighth street and Penn avenue, which had a large share of its funds on deposit at the Bank of Pittsburgh. The produce yards branch of the Franklin Savings and Trust, Penn avenue and Twenty-first street, also was closed.

COMPTROLLER IN CHARGE

The Bank of Pittsburgh was voluntarily turned over to the Comptroller of the Currency late last night. The Highland National followed early this morning. Directors of the Franklin Savings and Trust turned over their institution

U. S., France Bring British Crisis To Climax by Shutting Off Credit

STOCKS HIGHER AFTER FURORE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Old John Bull's heroic stand against adversity was applauded in Wall street today and supported by a stock market that rallied spectacularly after an early dip.

Partly because important European exchanges, with the exception of the Paris Bourse, were closed selling orders poured into New York brokerage houses this morning, but so well had the market been prepared for just such a happening that before the end of the first hour declines of $2 to $6 in principal issues had been more than recovered.

The rise was checked around noon, but was soon renewed with fresh vigor, under the lead of the railroad shares, and the market zoomed upward in the best of spirits.

Precautionary steps were taken to insure an orderly market. The

Appeals for Further Aid Refused, Says Snowden

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Refusal of the United States and France to extend further credits to the Bank of England directly preceded the British government's decision to abandon the gold standard temporarily, Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden told the House of Commons today.

His revelation was made in the course of introducing an emergency measure providing for suspension of the gold standard act of 1925 for a period of six months. Snowden said:

"We informed the United States and French governments confidentially on Friday of the situation and asked their view of the probability of obtaining further credit.

"In both cases the replies were friendly and sympathetic.

MORGAN LAUDS BRITISH PLAN

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—J. P. Morgan today expressed to the Associated Press optimism regarding the situation arising from Great Britain's abandonment of the gold standard. He said it was a "hopeful and not a discouraging event."

Mr. Morgan said:

"This step seems to me to be the second necessary stage in the work of the national government, the first being the balancing of the budget.

"The completion of the government's work will be the restoration of trade in this country.

"This being the case, it seems to me a hopeful and not a discouraging event, and one which brings the great work of the government much nearer to accomplishment."

NURSES ACCUSE 'PROWLER'

Two Allegheny General Hospital nurses appeared in North Side Police Court today against Jerome J. King, 26, of 1926 Forbes street, captured, police say, on the roof of an apartment house at 701 Ridge avenue, early today.

The nurses, Gwenith Summersgill and Margaret Matthews, testified that King, on the fire escape outside their bedroom window, had broken the screen and was trying to enter. They screamed.

E. T. Thomas manager of the apartment, and A. Riffle, a tenant, captured King, who had fled to the roof of the four-story building, they testified.

King was held over by Magistrate Ray Schneider. He was said by police to have been present at a shooting in the home of Constable Jack Schneider, an outcropping of the Schneider-Walsh feud in the First Ward, recently.

Kane Saved From Attack By Wife's Brother

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service.

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 21.—Only interference by Constable E. W. Brownley prevented an attack by W. H. (Hop) Graham on Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, University of Tennessee romance language teacher, charged with the murder of his wife, Graham's sister, when Kane was arrested, it was learned today.

When Kane goes on trial in three days in the drowning of his wife, the prosecution plans to have the incident re-enacted, in so far as it is possible, in an effort to prove its contention that her husband was responsible for Mrs. Kane's death in comparatively shallow water, and that after she went under and he pulled her out, he made no effort to revive her, but rushed to a nearby hospital, where the woman was found to be dead.

Kane and a battery of defense counsel, headed by Percy Carmel, Hampton attorney, and Kane's counsin, E. Kent Kane, paid a call at the home of Mrs. Kane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Graham, at Hilton, just outside of Newport News, yesterday, and made an unsuccessful attempt to secure possession of the college professor's dog, "Hobo."

N. Y. Air Chief Dies, Hall Leaps as Plane Burns

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Peter J. Brady, president of the Federation bank, was killed today when the airplane of James Goodwin Hall, en route to Detroit, crashed between two houses in Staten Island.

Hall escaped with a parachute drop. The two houses were set afire by the plane, and a woman was burned to death.

Brady was Assistant Dock Commissioner in charge of aviation for the city of New York. He was en route to the American Legion convention in Detroit, where he was to have spoken.

The plane in which he was flying is the same one in which Hall, a New York broker, has sought to break speed records throughout the country.

VETS URGED TO WAR ON DEPRESSION

Tumult Breaks as President Leaves Hall; Roosevelt, Baker Idols of Session

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

OLYMPIA ARENA, DETROIT, Sept. 21.—The colorful thirteenth annual convention of the American Legion received President Hoover's appeal today to enlist in a war against world depression with cheers, applause and an aftercry for beer.

The President was wildly applauded when he appeared before the crowd of 15,000 Legionnaires and their friends. He was frequently applauded as he warned against excessive expenditures and asked the Legionnaires to "enlist in a war to bring back business stability and prosperity." He also was cheered as he concluded his address in which he told the veterans they must abandon their demands for full payment of the bonus.

"WE WANT BEER"

The cry for beer came from the galleries just he was about to depart for the special train to return to Washington. Some wag, high in the gallery above the speaker's stand, began the cry with a shout:

"We want beer."

In a second a dozen took up the cry, and in a minute it was being shouted about the convention hall. Before the demand could reach greater proportions, the President had left the platform. His visit lasted but 18 minutes.

Two other men were given greater ovations than that accorded the President. First, Newton D. Baker, wartime Secretary of War, was cheered to the echo and after the President had departed, young Theodore Roosevelt, now Governor of Porto Rico, was given an ovation. Young Teddy was not supposed to speak, being among the celebrities National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil was introducing to the convention, but the veterans cheered him so long and so loud that he spoke briefly.

President Hoover warned that an empty treasury has created a situation which requires action of the most drastic nature or an intolerable burden of necessity will have to be imposed not only upon the rich, but upon "those who work in the fields, at the bench and desk."

OPPOSES BONUS

To that end Mr. Hoover declared all increases in government expenditure—including the bonus and pension demands being considered by the Legion—must be abandoned. He asserted:

"The imperative moment has come when increase in government expenditures must be avoided, whether it be ill-con-

'Fatty' in Toils, Smashes Evidence

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, corpulent comedian of the silver-sheet, was free on $100 bail today, charged with "breaking glass on the highway."

When he refused to adopt Policeman John Stewart's suggestion that one of his party companions drive his automobile, the officer took the wheel and began driving to the police station. It was charged that Arbuckle dashed a bottle to the pavement, exclaiming:

"There goes the evidence."

WIFE DEFIES MOB AS LYNCHING OF POWERS IS BALKED

KEEPS PISTOL READY FOR ATTACK

'Bluebeard' Weeps in Thanks At Transfer to Safety Of State Penitentiary

By AL GOUGH

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 21.—Cheated of its prey, a bloodthirsty mob of irate citizens abandoned the lynch rope today and turned its attention, singly and collectively, upon the red-headed wife of Harry F. Powers, West Virginia Bluebeard, [illegible] more than she [illegible] the opinion of [illegible] folk.

Powers [illegible] Harrison County jail early yesterday while a mob of several thousand persons [illegible] its way with the avowed purpose of lynching the prisoner, [illegible] safe in the West Virginia State Penitentiary at Moundsville today. He was an abject person, completely broken and "grateful for the protection of the law."

SOBS TO GUARDS

He broke into tears as he was being led into the state prison. Turning to his guards, he sobbed:

"God, how I appreciate what you men have done for me."

Meanwhile city and county authorities kept a watchful eye upon the Broad Oaks home of the Bluebeard suspect where his wife, Mrs. Luella Strother Powers, and her sister, Eva Be[illegible], have gone into seclusion since the recovery by police of thousands of dollars of murder loot identified as having belonged to Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Worcester, Mass., two of the five victims whose bodies were found in a slimy grave along the slaughterhouse garage at Quiet Dell several weeks ago.

WIFE READY TO SHOOT

Murmurs against the women have made the authorities watchful lest the public resentment flare anew with open avowals that the wife and sister should be run out of town.

Mrs. Powers, interviewed behind tightly locked doors and windows today, admitted her fear of mob violence, but declared she was "ready for anything." She said:

"Nobody better be coming around here fooling around. I've got a .38 revolver and I'll use it. First thing you know, I'll pop a hole into somebody."

Saturday night's demonstration in front of the county jail culminating in the mob's attack shortly after midnight was prompted for the most part by moonshine, according to Sheriff W. B. Grimm, who released six of the eight men arrested in the disorder, with a few words of warning. Two others were fined $1 and costs on charges of disorderly conduct.

There were thousands of persons in the mob which completely surrounded the jail and blocked traffic for several hours Saturday night.

BRITAIN PROBES NAVY PAY CUTS

PORTSMOUTH, England, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—An official investigation into the recent unrest in the navy and the effect of the pay cuts ordered in the government's economy program was to begin here today.

The admiralty will be directly represented at the hearing by an admiral sent from London. The inquiry will last several days and will be based on replies made by the sailors to questionnaires regarding their incomes and expenditures.

The atmosphere remained calm at all the ports, but the men of the Atlantic fleet continued to uphold their protests against the pay slashes.

Hoover Heroic in Facing Legion 'Bonus-Beer-Us' Stand, Gibbons Says

By FLOYD GIBBONS

World Famous Journalist and Radio Reporter

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—Hello everybody. And Hello Buddy.

The boys of 1917 and '18 have taken Detroit, lock, stock and bottle. The battle of the big "B's"—bonus and beer—(sometimes shouted "bone us" and "beer us") is on in a perfect froth of frenzy.

As Britain moves to suspend the gold basis, delegation of Legionnaires are resolving themselves to make the dry standard do a little hanging in suspense.

The bootleggers on the Detroit front and the legitimate hooch salesmen of Windsor, across the Canadian line, are doing heroic service to keep the boys in good spirits while the conflict rages.

The artillery preparation is terrific on both sides, as the opposing forces of the 1932 campaign hurl their heaviest broadsides into each other's camps. National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil paved the way for the dry and anti-bonus forces by firing his annual report at the delegates in this morning's papers. The opposition forces came right back with a moist and liberal blast which shot two columns off the same front page under the name of Field Marshall Jouett Shouse.

The initiative passed to the Democrats and Newt Baker led the next charge by beating Herb Hoover to the platform before the Legion convention. Boy howdy what a scrimmage this is going to be, with both sides digging saps and throwing wine dings all over the battle front!

Old Johnny Doughboy is a sport and admires courage. And courage is what Mr. Hoover has when he decided to appear before massed ranks of the boys who are openly opposed to his dry and anti-bonus policies by a proportion of at least 60 to 40.

Legion tycoons were just a bit worried as to whether the convention crowd would bloom out with razberries or bouquets. Their ace in the hole was their dependence upon the Legionnaires' sportsmanship and the admiration of real bravery.

With the temper of this Legion convention it requires rare wit, convincing sincerity and expert word-juggling or side-stepping to talk prohibition and no bonus to men who don't want the first and do want the second.

They are the same men who learned in France how to go out and get what they wanted. Thousands of them are here in Detroit today to do that same little thing. Or maybe it isn't such a little thing. We'll see.

governing board of the exchange invoked the rule forbidding short selling and the result was that heavy offerings of the first half hour were easily taken by covering orders. There was at no time a suggestion of demoralization.

Just when it seemed that the fruits of the first automatic rebound might be lost, a report swept through brokerage houses that the Interstate Commerce Commission was soon to announce its decision on the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase. This was taken to mean that at least part of the rise requested would be granted and active short covering poured into the rail stocks.

HOOVER URGES LEGION AID IN CRISIS

Bonus and Other Drains on Treasury Must Be Given Up, President Declares

sidered, hasty, or uninformed legislation of any kind, or whether it will be for new services meritorious in themselves. Any alternative will strike down the earnest efforts of the citizenry of our nation to start us back upon the economic paths to which we must return if we and our children are to have the destiny which everyone has the right to hope and the heart to give them.

"I am not speaking of veterans' legislation which has been urged for action at this convention, but I am speaking equally of demands for every other project proposed in the country which would require increased federal expenditure.

TAX ON RICH FUTILE

"Whatever the arguments made, do not be misled by those who say that we need only to tax the rich to secure the funds we need. We must face the absolute fact that the rich can be taxed to the point of diminishing returns, and still the deficit in our ordinary and necessary expenditures would not be covered even upon a basis of the utmost economy. Make no mistake; in these circumstances it is those who work in the fields, at the bench and desk who would be forced to carry an added burden for every added cent to our expenditures.

"Whatever the deficit may be and in whatever manner it may ultimately be met, every additional expenditure placed upon our government in this emergency magnifies itself out of all proportion into intolerable pressures, whether it is by taxation or by loans. Either loans or taxes beyond the very minimum necessities of government will drain the resources of industry and commerce and in turn will increase unemployment."

CITES DEFICIT

Speaking thus, the President invited the veterans to enlist in the fight to save the country from economic and financial chaos such as the powers of Europe are now experiencing. He continued:

"You would not have the President of the United States plead with any citizen or any group of citizens for any course of action. I make no plea to you. But you would have your President point out the path of service in this nation. That I am doing now. This is an emergency and these are the times for service to which we must put full heart and purpose to help and not retard the return of the happy days we know are ahead of your country and mine."

The Treasury, Mr. Hoover told the Legionnaires, is facing "another large deficit." The yield from income taxes alone, which ran to $2,400,000,000 in times of prosperity, he said, has dropped to only $1,200,000,000, and at a time when the added load of heavy expenditures for public works to aid the unemployed and large outlays for agricultural and veterans' relief are being carried.

In conclusion, the President asserted:

"With the guidance of the Almighty God, with the same faith, courage and self-sacrifice with which you, backed by the nation, won victory 14 years ago, so shall we win victory today."

Dry Repeal, Jobs, Defense Issues at Legion Meet

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—With President Hoover its guest of honor and the cash bonus issue reported settled according to his wishes, the American Legion opened its thirteenth annual convention in Olympia Arena today while an army of 100,000 blue and gray-clad World War veterans overran the flag-bedecked city.

Four major subjects—prohibition, unemployment relief and national defense, aside from the bonus question—agitated the veterans, as Legion officials sought to allay all opposition to policies of the Hoover administration.

It was reported the President had been assured the convention would not ask for full cash payment of the bonus before he decided to be its guest. The prohibition issue, though, was full of dynamite and every indication pointed to a "finish fight" on the floor of the convention.

BRITAIN DROPS GOLD STANDARD

but afforded no prospects of futher credit."

EXTOLS ASSISTANCE

In the next breath, however, the Chancellor extolled the United States and France for aid extended in the past. This remark was a reference to the credit of $400,000,000 xtended to the Bank of England several weeks ago by the Bank of France and a group of American financial institutions headed by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Snowden asserted:

"With appalling suddenness, the crisis which we had striven to avert broke on our heads. We had no alternative but to suspend the gold convertibility of our currency."

The House was packed to capacity for the momentous occasion—the high spot in the gravest financial situation confronting Great Britain since the war. Among those on hand was the Prince of Wales, who was wedged in between scores of lesser dignitaries in his own seat in the distinguished visitors' gallery, just above the House clock.

Immediately after Snowden had introduced the measure, Campbell Stephen, a Laborite, objected to its submission, but he was overruled by the speaker.

Snowden lost no time in assuring the House that Britain would not default in its foreign obligations. He said:

"Unreasoned panic appears abroad, where we are under obligation to make payments in dollars at par, for example, the war bonds due in New York.

"We shall continue to meet our obligations punctually in those centers."

CREDITS EXHAUSTED

At the outset, Chancellor Snowden revealed that decision to abandon the gold standard was precipitated by official notification from the Bank of England to Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald that the credits recently extended by France and the United States were "practically exhausted."

Foreign bankers in London, he announced, have agreed to cooperate in helping to prevent the selling of sterling. He said:

"There will be no restriction upon importation and exportation of gold.

"There has been much criticism of our expenditures, unemployment and adverse trade balance. All these have been seized upon and exaggerated.

"Information of unrest in the navy caused a scare and added to the general nervousness."

Early in his address, the Chancellor announced that suspension of the gold standard would continue in force for six months.

World Exchanges Closed As Emergency Measure

Associated Press.

Faced with Great Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard, world financial circles today moved swiftly to protect the international financial structure.

Stock exchanges in London, Berlin, Brussells, Oslo, Stockholm, Amsterdam, Johannesburg and Calcutta were closed. The Montreal exchange decided to open on a "restricted basis."

The Bourse in Paris remained open, but the official exchange market was closed and no official currency quotations were made.

In Washington no adverse reaction of major importance was expected and confidence was expressed by Treasury officials that England would extricate herself quickly from the confusion.

Prices on commodity exchanges in London increased and on the metal exchange copper rose more than £2 a ton. Tin was nearly £6 a ton higher, while at Liverpool cotton advanced almost a half penny a pound to just over 4 pence.

By JAMES R. YOUNG

International News Service.

TOKIO, Sept. 21.—Renewed hostilities between Japanese and Chinese troops in Manchuria occurred today despite efforts of government authorities to bring about an amicable settlement of the dispute.

Heavy firing took place one mile from Changchun. Japanese troops captured the City of Fushun, finally disarming all Chinese after the latter had put up stubborn resistance.

Without consulting the cabinet, Gen. Hayashi, commander-in-chief of the Japanese garrison in Korea, ordered the 19th and 20th Korean divisions to proceed to Chientao.

PEIPING, Sept. 21.—Withdrawal of Japanese occupational forces from South Manchuria within 24 hours was demanded today by Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, in an ultimatum served on Japanese Minister Shigemitsu at Nanking for transmission to Tokio.

The 30-year-old Manchurian war lord also declared that a "satisfactory explanation" of the occupation would be expected in 48 hours.

The Chinese forces were ordered to mobilize in the vicinity of Shanhaikwan, beyond the great wall, and it was expected here that preparations were being made for a general attack upon the Japanese at Mukden and at other points in the occupation zone.

GENEVA, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Formal demand that the League of Nations intervene in Manchuria between Japan and China was made today by Dr. Alfred Sze, representative of the Chinese Nationalist Government, in a complaint filed with secretary-general Sir Eric Drummond.

Protesting against the Japanese occupation of South Manchuria, Dr. Sze pointed out the League under the covenant was empowered to act anywhere in the world in events which disturbed the peace or threatened war between nations.

RUSSIA MOBILIZES

LONDON, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Reports of Russian mobilization in connection with the Manchurian trouble were contained in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Riga today.

The dispatch said that the Red Army in the Far East was being "reinforced" and that Clementi Voroshilov, Soviet Commissar for War, had been ordered to proceed to the Far East from the Urals immediately.

The message stated that M. Karakhan, Soviet Under Commissar for Foreign Affairs, had informed the Japanese and Chinese Ambassadors in Moscow that Soviet Russia "cannot remain indifferent" to the Manchurian conflict.

Weather Conditions.

There is a disturbance centered over Manitoba this morning and extends southward over the plains states. It produced showers and thunderstorms nearly everywhere from Southern Kansas to Canada. Over the Rocky Mountain states and the Canadian Northwest rainfall was more general in character. At Yellowstone National Park it is snowing. High pressure covers the East, with centers over the South Atlantic states and the Far Northeast. Temperature changes were not important since yesterday, but the tendency is toward cooler over the states west of the Mississippi, and slightly warmer over the East. Maximum temperatures were high again yesterday over the southern plains and the Mississippi Valley states.

1931 WORLD ART JURY MAY BE LAST HERE

30TH EXHIBIT OF MASTERS READY

Possible Substitute for Annual International Award Now Considered

By PENELOPE REDD

The arrival of the thirtieth international jury of award for the Carnegie International Art Exhibition has caused considerable discussion and speculation among lovers of the annual art exhibition regarding the probability that this may be the final international jury to meet in Pittsburgh.

While there is no criticism of the quality of the exhibition, the expense involved in assembling it and in providing an international jury in Pittsburgh are the points debated.

Straws in the wind indicate the fine arts committee, too, eventually may reach an official conclusion that an equally laudable exhibition of contemporary art may be secured by less expensive methods.

The attitude of some lovers of the exhibition, who have raised these questions, may be summed up approximately this way:

The jury will be in Pittsburgh about 48 hours. Three of these eminent gentlemen in the world of art have been transported thousands of miles at the expense of the institute to give perhaps five hours of their time in selecting the prize winners from among the 500 canvases submitted in competition.

COST HIGH

It is declared that when it is considered that substantially all of the annual appropriation of the department of fine arts goes to defray the expenditures involved in freight, packing and insurance charges on the paintings brought here for the International, and in the cost of bringing the jury to Pittsburgh, in addition to the traveling and entertainment expense of the fine arts director in his annual pilgrimage to Europe, it becomes an obvious problem in economics.

Andrew Carnegie established Carnegie Institute as both a permanent and temporary repository of those "handiworks of God and man" whose rarity or beauty should make them objects of interest and education to the people of Pittsburgh.

For 30 years and more the museum has been sending its scientists to the furthermost corners of the earth in quest of rare birds, animals, flowers and buried records of extinct civilization.

Year after year, scientists from Carnegie Museum set out on these expeditions poorly financed, frequently taking advantage of free passage on whalers or oil tankers. Their accoutrement usually consists of beads and trinkets to win the good will of savage chieftains, guns and nets to hunt and snare the objects of their search, and canned beans for feed, "begged" from kindly Pittsburgh preservers.

TRAVELS IN STYLE

The institute's art explorer sets forth in quite different style from the institute's scientists seeking Nature's creations.

No oil tanker's hammock or whaler's deck, these folks say, encounters the ambassador of fine arts. In a fine cabin on a swift liner, he begins an itinerary that will later embrace European salons and ateliers, the lairs of the foreign artists whose reluctance to exhibit is constantly emphasized.

The ambassador of fine arts may carry a flattering present for a prime minister, while ample letters of credit make it unnecessary for him to beg and lug along his own provisions.

Thus are the temporary "specimens" for Carnegie Institute's annual art exhibition captured.

DRUG ON MARKET

But while rare birds and animals for permanent exhibition are getting rarer and, therefore, more costly to obtain, European paintings for temporary exhibition, which now cost Carnegie Institute annually a small fortune, are actually becoming a drug on the market, say experts.

Scarcely a ship comes up New York Bay without its quota of foreign canvases clamoring for American attention, it is pointed out. The result is that more representative European paintings are accessible for loan from the galleries of Manhattan than could ever be exhibited in Pittsburgh, say some connoisseurs.

And yet the Fine Arts Committee of the institute is evidently told every year that practically the entire annual appropriation must be diverted to the costly quest for European features for the institute's rodeo of art, according to some art lovers in close touch with the institute.

Thus do these admirers of the exhibition sum up their views of the international situation. Whether their view will prevail, whether next year will see changes in methods probably will become apparent within the next six months.

ART FOR EXHIBIT HERE VANISHES

Disappearance of one of the paintings to be exhibited at the International Art Exhibit at Carnegie Institute was announced today, as the International Award Committee was about to start its work.

The picture was one of three by Denieka, Russian artist, and disappeared some place between Paris and Pittsburgh.

The disappearance of the picture was noted two weeks ago when a packing case in which two paintings by Denieka, "Showers" and "Cross Country," was opened. The painting "Showers" was missing.

According to officers of Carnegie Institute, a systematic search has been in progress since the loss was first noted. The pictures were crated in Moscow, Russia, and sent to Paris, where the two paintings were photographed. Then they were resealed and shipped to Pittsburgh. At Havre, France, it is said, the French seals were broken and United States seals attached.

When the crate arrived at Carnegie Institute there was no indication of tampering with the seals.

Both paintings were insured.

This morning the American committee began passing on paintings from artists in this country and when the committee had finished the International Jury of Awards was to complete its work.

Randall Davey, Jonas Lie, Eugene Speicher, Ernest Blumenchein and Charles Rosen are on the American committee of selection, while the jury from Europe consists of Henri Eugene Le Sidaner, of Paris; Paul Nash, of London, and Cipriano Efisio Oppo, of Rome.

QUAKE SHAKES AREAS IN 3 STATES

Tremor Felt in Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky; One Town Suffers Big Damage

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The surface of the globe in districts of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky had undergone a perceptible change today, as a result of earth shocks which frightened residents in many localities, and caused considerable damage in Anna, a small town near Sidney, O.

The tremors were felt late yesterday. They were most noticeable at Cincinnati, Springfield and Lima, O.; at Indianapolis, Connersville, Anderson, Liberty and Richmond, Ind., and in some localities of Northern Kentucky.

At Anna, practically every building was damaged. At Anderson, Ind., pictures were shaken off the walls.

The tremors lasted about 15 seconds. The disturbance, geologists of the Chicago Weather Bureau said, were caused by the slipping of strata under the earth's surface. These geological readjustments occur sporadically in the Middle West, but no serious damage has resulted during the past 100 years because of the relatively rocky formations peculiar to the region. They are not caused by volcanic activity, the geologists said.

Rollin T. Chamberlin, professor of geology at the University of Chicago, explained that "faults" or fissures in the earth's crust and internal stress due to sudden variations in temperatures cause the tremors.

Prof. J. Hammond Smith, head of the Civil Engineering Department, University of Pittsburgh, said the institution's seismagraph recorded the Ohio-Indiana quake as a slight disturbance beginning at 6:06 p. m. yesterday eastern standard time and lasting about five minutes.

Another disturbance, the location of which is not known, was recorded beginning at 1:05 and continuing 40 minutes. It was of greater intensity than the first.

The Mahatma said he expected to address the cotton workers, many of whom have lost their jobs through the development of his policies in India, and would also confer with leaders of the cotton trade.

MAZE OF YACHT UNDER STUDY BY SLEUTH

Detective Eager to Question Mrs. Collings; Divorcee Figures in Investigation

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

International News Service.

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Sept. 21.—A maze of clues, the principal one of which seemed to be a pair of white canvas shoes, today confronted Felix di Martini, noted private detective who has taken over the investigation into the mysterious murder of Benjamin P. Collings, the Stamford, Conn., yachtsman.

The shoes were on the feet of Mrs. Lillian Collings, the slain man's widow, when she was rescued at 5:30 a. m. on September 10 from the motorboat Bo-Peep after she had been kidnaped by two "pirates" who hours earlier had invaded her husband's cabin cruiser, the Penguin, beat him, tied him hand and foot and tossed him overboard.

SHOES INTEREST DI MARTINI

Mrs. Collings said the elderly man of the two "pirates" had taken the shoes from a duffle bag when they were paddling her away from the Penguin in a canoe and gave them to her. This was the man who gave her half a dozen blankets when he put her off the canoe onto the Bo-Peep.

Di Martini, who was active in the famous Hall-Mill case and who has taken charge of the investigation at the behest of Suffolk County authorities, is frankly intrigued by the canvas shoes clue. Now that he has acquainted himself with most of the facts in the Collings case, he set forth this morning to determine the ownership of the shoes.

The detective expressed the opinion that the shoes Mrs. Collings was found wearing on the Bo-Peep did not belong to her husband. If it were established that the shoes actually were the slain man's, it would be a strong point in breaking down Mrs. Collings' story. Di Martini, however, does not anticipate such an eventuality.

NO ONE CLEARED

Di Martini is eager to question Mrs. Collings. He said he desires to interrogate everybody who is in a position to give him important "leads."

Di Martini said:

"I have not got Mrs. Collings under suspicion. I have no one under suspicion. At the same time I am not clearing anybody."

Di Martini manifested interest in statements made last night by Mrs. Collings at her home in Stamford, Conn., where she is recuperating from a nervous collapse, that prevented her from attending the Coroner's inquest here last Friday.

Mrs. Collings is now confident that robbery was the original motive of the two "pirates" in attacking her husband.

CLUES BAFFLING

She previously had been quoted as saying that in her opinion the motive was the attempted attack upon her. The fact the elderly man of the two "pirates" did try to attack her was the basis for her original belief.

The dozens of clues and theories has made Di Martini's task most difficult. One of these tips prompted him to send a Charleston, S. C., hotel regarding a registration. It is understood that a divorcee figures in some way in this angle.

At Lindbergh's suggestion, all social functions planned here in honor of Mrs. Lindbergh and himself were canceled to enable them to devote their full time to flood relief work.

Estelle to Protest Divorce Dempsey Expects Today

RENO, Nev., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey expected Judge Thomas F. Moran to award him a default decree of divorce today against Estelle Taylor, his actress wife.

Because she chose to seek her divorce in California, Miss Taylor, now in Chicago, failed to answer the former heavyweight champion's complaint and is not expected to be represented in court.

Attorneys said she would be content to attack the legality of Dempsey's divorce when her own suit comes on for trial at Los Angeles.

Dempsey said he would tell the court that unhappiness which resulted from the fact that their careers conflicted, led to his separation from the stage and screen star. Other than a residence witness, he was to be the only one to testify. His petition charged cruelty.

DENVER, Sept. 21 (AP).—Legislative deliberations of the general convention of the Episcopal Church began in earnest today as members of the house of bishops and the house of lay and clerical deputies studied committees' recommendations.

Subjects widely separated in their scope—marriage and divorce, the American missal or mass book, disarmament and world peace, unemployment and the economic situation and Christian or faith healing were up for discussion.

The last of the major reports was laid before the convention today by the joint commission on Christian healing. The commission recommended that those who practice such healing in the Episcopal church operate in co-operation with the medical profession.

Do You Start the Day's Work in the Basement?

When you wake up in the morning and make your chilly trip to the basement to stir the fire, what a wonderful feeling it is to find that the fire has gone out . . . A wonderful feeling all right (I guess not). Well, you must have a fire so you set about starting one—you chop some wood—shake the ashes—take out clinkers and by the time you have it going full blast and the house warm, you are also pretty hot yourself . . . Your days work had already begun (in the basement).

Use Gas Heat In Your Home This Winter

Gas Heat in your home will change the entire complexion of things . . . You can sleep longer every morning because there's no fire to stir up (or start)—no coal or ashes to bother with—and the temperature inside is always the same regardless of the weather outside . . . 3 BANKS CLOSE IN CITY to J. D. Swigart, chief state bank examiner, shortly afterwards.

Assurance was given that funds in the trust departments of the closed banks would not be affected.

Officials of the Bank of Pittsburgh expect depositors to be eventually paid in full.

STATEMENT ISSUED

Carl D. Fogle, secretary of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association, issued the following statement:

"The board of directors of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., having requested the Comptroller of the Currency to take charge of the bank in order to conserve the interests of depositors, creditors and stockholders, the Clearing House member banks have agreed to advance 50 per cent of the face value of receiver's certificates immediately upon the issuance of the same."

These Clearing House banks are Mellon National Bank, First National Bank, Union Trust Company, Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, Exchange National Bank, Third National Bank, Farmers Deposit National Bank, Union National Bank, Duquesne National Bank, Monongahela National Bank, Keystone National Bank, Diamond National Bank, Commonwealth Trust Company, Colonial Trust Company, Fidelity Trust Company and Pennsylvania Trust Company.

TRUST FUNDS UNAFFECTED

Clarifying the position of trust funds, William A. Wilson, trust officer of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., said:

"The securities and funds in the trust department are kept entirely separate from the assets of the bank. They are in no sense the property of the bank. As soon as succeeding trustees are appointed, the various trusts will be turned over to them.

"None of the customers of the trust department need feel any concern over the safety of their property."

On June 30 the statement of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., showed that it had total deposits of $46,921,035 and total resources of $53,343,953.

ACT GUARDS ASSETS

W. T. Davidson, cashier of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., said:

"Owing to the continued withdrawal of deposits the board of directors of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., has adopted a resolution to suspend operations and to request the Comptroller of the Currency to take charge of its assets in order that the interests of all depositors, creditors and stockholders may be conserved."

Assurance of the general strength of the Pittsburgh banking situation was given by James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company and vice chairman of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association. Mr. Chaplin said:

"While the voluntary closing of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., by its board of directors is a source of regret to all of us, the directors are to be commended for their courage in taking this step in order to protect and conserve the interests of depositors, creditors and stockholders.

CITY BANKS' STRENGTH

"The drain upon the bank has arisen most largely from withdrawals of deposits made by banks in other sections of the country who have been called upon to make use of their funds at home in the present emergency.

"Those of us who have examined the bank's condition have found nothing to alarm the depositors in the end.

"Furthermore it should be emphasized that the general banking situation in Pittsburgh is among the best of any city in the country due largely to Pittsburgh's old-fashioned caution and conservatism."

The Highland National Bank is affiliated with the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A.

On June 30 it had total deposits of $3,557,318 and total resources of $4,489,893.

The Franklin Savings and Trust had deposits of $2,773,000 and resources of $3,470,000.

The City of Pittsburgh had $892,500 on deposit in the three banks, Controller James P. Kerr said. This was divided as follows: Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., $690,000; Franklin Savings and Trust Company, $125,000; Highland National Bank, $77,500. The funds are protected by bond.

HOTEL DEATH HELD SUICIDE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21.—Completing an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death in a downtown hotel of a woman who registered as Mrs. J. R. Jones of Pittsburgh, today Cuyahoga County authorities said they believed the woman took her own life. A deep knife wound in her right arm from which police said the woman had bled to death was probably inflicted by a razor blade found in the room.

Mrs. Jones, who was about 40, had no baggage or marks which might be used as clues to her identity.

Marine Sergeant Kills Self in Bed

Sergt. Chester O. Johnson, 32, of the United States Marine recruiting office here ended his life in his home at 216 Sycamore street, Mt. Washington, early yesterday, according to a report to the coroner. Deputy Coroner J. P. Artz Jr. reported that he found Johnson dead in bed, a bullet hole in his head and a heavy service revolver in his hand. According to the deputy's report, the suicide was prompted by financial worries.

Recount Rushed to Aid Election Investigation

the Sunday adjournment, District Attorney Park announced that it would dispose of routine business until late this afternoon, when he planned to launch again an investigation of the alleged vote thievery.

Meantime deputy sheriffs continued bringing in the ballot boxes, every one of which was impounded on a court order obtained by Armstrong.

LOCKS BROKEN

Inspection of them showed:

Twenty-four without locks.

Twenty-six with locks broken.

Twenty-eight with keys attached to the locks.

Twenty-six with the locks open.

McGovern followers said the condition of the locks substantiated their charges of "stuffing" and other tampering. The Armstrong supporters denied this.

Armstrong himself came into the Sheriff's office yesterday as the last of the boxes, all but one of which are now in custody, were being stacked around the room. He said:

"I've won this election and I'm going to keep it. I had these boxes brought in to prevent tampering with them.

"No tax dodger and no man who bought a $3,000 rug for his home with the taxpayers' money and then moved it to the office when the publicity started about it, is going to take the nomination away from me.

"You newspaper fellows didn't know that rug was in his home for a while, did you?"

RAP AT KLINE, COYNE

At least some of his remarks were obviously aimed at State Senator James J. Coyne, defeated County Commissioner candidate, and Mayor Charles H. Kline, both of whom will support McGovern in November if the official tabulation shows Armstrong has taken the second place nomination from him.

State Senator W. D. Mansfield, who won the first place nomination by approximately 40,000 votes, already has declared for McGovern and is expected to team with him on an Independent ticket if Armstrong is "counted in."

Armstrong followers were plainly worried as the grand jury's investigation grew closer and closer to home.

District Attorney Park's hopes of investigating boxes in which fraudulent ballots are believed to have been stuffed by night-riders, "phantom voters" and "repeaters" apparently had been checkmated for the time being by Armstrong's impounding of the boxes.

The return board had counted 46 districts of the county's 932 at the close Saturday.

Returns from these 46 districts showed:

Mansfield	McGovern	Coyne	Armstrong
5,751	4,475	16,565	7,345

Return Sheet Gone, Park to Begin Quiz

Circumstances surrounding a missing machine return sheet from an unsealed envelope, which later was brought in by election board officials, was referred to District Attorney Park for investigation today by Judges Marshall and Moore as the return board began the third day of its official count.

The missing sheet was in the seventh district of the Third Ward.

A check of the returns in three districts of the Third Ward—the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth—revealed a gain of 183 votes for Commissioner Charles C. McGovern over Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. The greatest gain was in the Fourteenth where the unofficial tabulation showed McGovern with 46 votes and Armstrong with 236. In the official tabulation McGovern had 46 votes and Armstrong 43.

ASK EXPLANATIONS

Explanation of alleged "discrepancies" and "inconsistencies" between their election day tabulations and those of the returning board, was asked of the election boards of the Seventh and Eighth Districts of the Fourth Ward by Judges Marshall and Moore. Neither of the judges would reveal what comprises the "discrepancies" and "inconsistencies."

An explanation of differences in the unofficial and official tabulations in the Fifteenth District of the Fourth Ward was also asked.

The return envelope of the Sixteenth District of the Fourth Ward contained, in addition to its own sheet, the return sheet of the Nineteenth District. The board accepted the Sixteenth District returns but had not acted upon the Nineteenth District.

PARK CHECKMATED

District Attorney Park's hopes of investigating boxes in which fraudulent ballots are believed to have been stuffed by night riders, "phantom voters" and "repeaters" apparently had been checkmated for the time being by Armstrong's move in impounding all of the ballot boxes.

Impounding placed the boxes in custody of the Sheriff, where they must remain exempt for court call, for use of the returning and recount boards.

Once these boards are through with the work, the boxes will be open for grand jury inspection.

Today's decision to appoint the recount board at once instead of waiting until the returning board finishes its work, however, again gives Park the whip hand as in this manner the work of the two boards should be ended in about half the time required in the usual procedure.

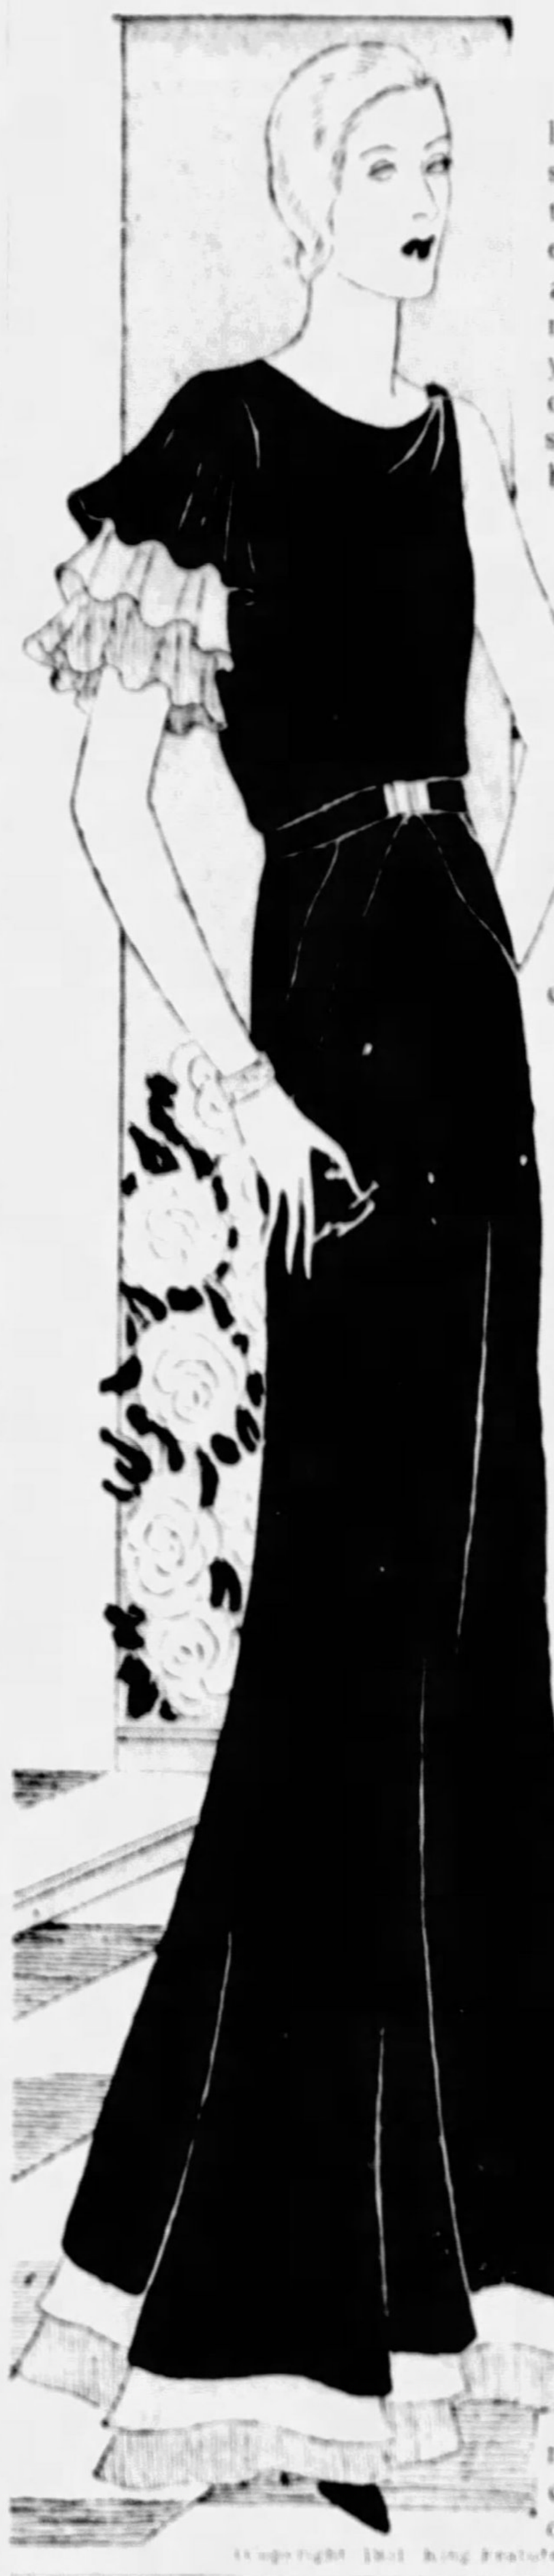
AUTUMN HATS AND DRESSES HAVE ONE-SIDED TRIMMINGS

—Sketched in Paris—



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 21.—A very one-sided argument for public favor is being advanced by the new clothes recently shown at the openings. Hats and frocks both subscribe to the one sided theory and find it sufficient to win our interest and approval. For there is no glossing over the dash and gay charm of a hat that tilts to one side in a slightly rakish manner, and there is no mistaking the deliciously youthful note that it suggests. The same thing applies to dresses that boast one-sided details and trimming. Of course, such a dress must be good, otherwise the effect will merely be foolish and will give the suggestion that there was not enough material to devote equally to both sides of the model. So do be careful about ordering sartorial traffic to one side, unless you are prepared to do right by your autumn clothes budget.

AS HAS BEEN implied, there are but few collections that do not show one sided effects in both trimming and detail. An excellent example of this note is shown in the new one-sleeved frock by Irene Dana shown at her recent presentation and sketched for this page. The dress, a dinner frock, is of black crepe Birman. The top flounce of the one three-tiered sleeve is of the same black crepe, the second is red, the third, blue crepe. These are all cut very circular and fall in soft folds. The three colors are again repeated in the tiered effect edging the skirt. The hipline has curved set-in pieces. At the left shoulder the bodice is drawn up into a buckle and falls in back in a jabot of the three colors used in the sleeve and skirt flounces. There is a narrow self belt.

THERE IS NO denying the simple but effective charm of a neat felt hat, and this is especially true of this year's models. The drawing shows two hats typical of the type worn by the smartest women here. The first is supple black felt. It is draped into a shallow crown and drooping narrow brim, cut into an irregular line at the edge. Over one eye is a deep point drawn up inside a twist of white grosgrain ribbon which encircles the head. The twist is placed somewhat askew, dipping low across the forehead at one side. Rust colored felt is used for the little round crown, second Empire hat. The brim rolls at each side and is cut away at the center front to make an inverted point. There are two flat feather ornaments, one rust colored, the other black.

Stunning for Afternoon

Pattern 2218

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Typical of the new fall afternoon mode is this charming frock developed in printed canton crepe or satin, smartly contrasted by a draped vestee. The downward points of bodice and skirt tend to slenderize the body, and the vestee add to the width of the shoulders in the accepted new manner. The puffed sleeves with snug cuffs are very smart. The original model was brown canton crepe with gold and darker brown designs. The vestee was gold crepe Roma. Equally smart are black with white, and green with biege.

Pattern 2218 is obtainable only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material, ⅜ yard 36-inch contrasting. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

3 HURT IN FIRE ON SOUTH SIDE

Three workmen were injured in a fire following an explosion of two oil tanks in the socket room of the A. M. Byers Company plant at South Sixth street early today, according to police.

The fire caused an estimated loss of $5,000 according to plant officials.

The three victims were Frank Reick, 39, 19 Monastery street, lacerations on left arm and burns on both wrists; Frank McKeever, 48, of 420 Kingsboro street, burns on neck, head and arms; Fred Seen, 38, of 2112 Niles street, burns on neck, arms and hands.

All of the injured were treated in the emergency hospital at the plant. Seven other workmen escaped injury.

Traffic in Bingham and South Sixth streets was tied up more than an hour.

The fire swept through the walls of the building and burned through the roof. The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

FIRE RAVAGES FORD PLANT

CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Three buildings of the Ford Motor Company plant on the Delaware River here were badly damaged today by a spectacular fire. Every fire company in Chester and neighboring boroughs responded.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the paint shop. It was accompanied by a terrific explosion. Plant officials estimated the damage at "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Cars for the foreign trade and for distribution in nearby Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey are assembled at the local plant, which normally employes several thousand workers.

WILKINS DOCKS AT BERGEN

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition

By Radio via American Radio News Corporation and Radiomarine Corporation

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 21.—Back to civilization from our Polar submarine excursion, the Nautilus arrived at Bergen at 2 o'clock in the morning. We dropped our anchor and waited until 9 a. m. when we moved to the Norwegian navy pier where we were greeted by Commandant Moe and other naval officers.

The valiant crew took the Nautilus to within a few hundred miles of the North Pole, where we burrowed around under the ice in the Arctic ice pack in a series of scientific experiments, from which we are bringing home many important specimens and discoveries, will be dispersed today to go their respective ways.

Most of the members of the expedition will leave at once for New York, sailing from London on September 25 in the steamer American Tanker.

Capt. Sloan Danenhower and myself will remain here for a time to dispose of our equipment and vessel. The Nautilus will probably be sent to a watery grave, plans now being made to sink her.

WORLD SERIES ON RADIO :-:

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Radio has yet to stretch out its money bags to authors. While there is apparently no limit to the offers it makes to those who are expert in trilling Pagliacci and Carmen or drawing Schubert's Ave Maria from a violin, it still seeks to hold down writers to ridiculously puny wages.

There is no writer of the first rank now engaged in the broadcasting salons. And maybe the salons couldn't use a first rank writer. The reason, of course, lies in the refusal of the radio caliphs to pay the writers proportionately as large sums as they can earn scribbling for the stage or the movies or the magazines.

Moreover, the broadcasters refuse to pay the market price for the published works of successful authors. Yet they want the works. They know that in the stories and plays of famous writers lies the salvation of radio drama. They know they have to vary music with speech if they wish to hold their public. But they are not willing to pay for words as they now pay for music.

You would think they would change their policy, would realize that to put words together interestingly requires quite as high a talent as stringing notes together or giving vocal or instrumental expression to them, would gladly pay for such talent. Yet, they offer sums ranging from $1,500 to as high as $10,000 to an artist in a brief musical program. An established author would be lucky if he could dispose of his work for $100.

Not long ago a sponsor of a radio program, through his advertising agents, sought a series of stories from Edgar Wallace. Probably the most successful, certainly the most prolific producer of mystery yarns today, Wallace commands a high price for his stuff. And it is the kind of stuff that radio does more effectively than it does any other kind of writing. What did the sponsor offer for Wallace's stories, which were to stretch over an indefinite period? You'd be surprised, my comrades. The nice little sum of $1,500. Later the sum was raised to $5,000. The sponsor thought he was being unusually generous, and yet he intended spending $300,000 for the hookup.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Grabbing Another's Husband Usually Brings Misery

Have you fallen for a married man?

And are you crying bitterly that you just Can't Give Him Up—that you'll never love anyone else like you love him?

Then tune in on Dot's broadcast. She's answering Carol's heartbroken moan. Once she moaned too and thought her world had come to an end because she discovered that her Hero had a wife. And then—

But we'll let her tell it in her own way.

"Dear Sally:

"How foolish Carol and all those other girls who say 'I still love him even if he is married.' If they only realized it, they haven't ever one speck of love—honest, real love—for men like that.

"How do I know? Well, I'll tell you. About three years ago I started going with a certain fellow whom I met where I worked. I went with him for about six months.

"Then I discovered that he was married. It was a terrible blow. My world simply had come to an end. I was heartbroken. I knew I could never love another man.

"Oh, what an idiot I was! One night after I had moped around for quite a while some girls from the office persuaded me to go to a party.

HAPPILY MARRIED

"And there I met my future husband. In fact I fell so completely in love with him that I never even thought of Norman, my married friend, again. Three months later we were married and now I have the sweetest baby girl you could ever imagine.

"This idea that you can't get over someone like Carol's married friend is a lot of bunk. Why waste your own life trying to grab for something that's out of your reach and that you have no right to anyway?

"Why waste your life regretting that you can't take on some rotter who would probably two-time you the first time some prettier nit-wit ... with no home cares and responsibilities to keep her from looking tip-top ... came along?

BAD BUSINESS

"I am as happy as any woman could be now in spite of once having thought my heart was broken for life. And I never think of Norman any more except when I see some silly letter like Carol's in your column.

"Am glad I snapped out of it. I hope to tell you I am! It's the only thing to do. DOT."

Hooray for you, Dot!

You've sense and spunk and fairness, and you deserve every bit of happiness that you've found.

This business of bargaining in someone else's property and then squawking when you get your fingers burnt doesn't buy any of us anything except bigger and better misery.

And even if we could get the red balloon we're grabbing for ... what kind of a world would it be if every smart Aleck youngster could grab off someone else's husband?

Smart-Aleck youngsters don't stay young. They get worn and weary too ... are they going to be willing to give up their heroes the first time some younger cutie comes along and makes a pass at them? I ask you!

Women Can Keep Secrets, Says Fay King, But Men Tell All in Memoirs

I'LL TELL YOU ALL ABOUT IT!
BUT SHE NEVER DOES
THE GREATER THE SECRET, THE BETTER WOMEN KEEP IT, OFTEN DISTROYING ALL PROOFS
IT IS MEN WHO ARE ALWAYS WRITING "CONFESSIONS" AND "TELLING ALL"
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Can a woman keep a secret?

Decidedly and emphatically yes!

And the best help for doing so is her reputation for not being able to.

Men pride themselves on being close-mouthed. But their silence is often the best clue.

Women, on the other hand, will talk freely, as if they hadn't sense enough to keep still about anything. They are willing, even eager, to be considered erratic, silly, hysterical, anything so long as they have successfully concealed the real facts.

A man feels secure if he just keeps still. But a woman is not sure her secret is safe until she has established an entirely different impression.

Women have died without ever talking. But men invariably publish memoirs at last and tell all!

The Cardiac Clinic

By DOROTHY ROE

They rant and they rave at gum-chewing stenogs
They tell them they're all total losses
But while they're about it why don't they go on
And observe the bad habits of bosses?

The poor stenographer gets blamed for too many things these days.

If she isn't a paragon of neatness, efficiency and cheerfulness she gets called down by the boss.

If she forgets to do his remembering for him, he reproaches her bitterly.

If she isn't attractive, he soon fires her and installs someone more decorative.

And if she is, his wife at once is ablaze with suspicion.

Whenever a business man is late for dinner some wag can always be depended upon to remark—"Oh, well, he's probably out with his stenographer."

They write stories and plays about the glamorous existence of the modern stenog. Life, to hear the fiction slingers tell it, is just one gay round of frivolity for her and she always marries the boss in the end.

As a matter of fact, most stenographers are hard-working, conscientious young women these days. They have to be, to hold their jobs.

They earn every penny they make—and they have to spend a lot of it on the permanent waves and sheer stockings that are a necessity to any woman in the business world today.

And many of them have to contend with the boorishness of their bosses.

The boss may wax scornful and indignant if he finds his stenographer chewing gum. But if he wants to chew or smoke, or put his feet on the desk during business hours, it's quite a different matter.

He may preach sermons against girls who don't keep their minds on their business ... but if he happens to feel flirtations and his secretary doesn't respond, he is angrier than if she had failed to get out his letters.

Here's a plaint on the subject from CLAIRE, a Pittsburgh stenog:

"Dear Dorothy Roe:

"I am a constant enthusiastic reader of your column and I wish you great success.

"I agree with you that it is disgusting to look at and listen to a stenographer chewing her gum .... But some of the employers chew gum, too, and they make no less of a spectacle of themselves than the stenogs do.

"A boss can jingle loose change in his pocket and crackle papers while he is dictating until one feels like jumping up and down. Or he can try to dictate and balance a pipe between his teeth at the same time, expecting a stenographer to understand perfectly all the mumblings that issue from within.

"Some bosses even swear at girl employes as if they were just pieces of machinery.

"And what of the unwelcome attentions that are showered upon good-looking stenographers from conceited employers who must have some diversion?

"There are two sides to every story, and while we stenographers are expected to show consideration for our employers, why aren't we entitled to have a little consideration shown for our feelings as well?

"Sincerely, wishing you luck,
"CLAIRE."

Claire adds that she would like to have the reactions of other stenogs. Write me, care of Universal Service, 63 Park Row, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bread-and-Butter Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is the bread and butter letter required when just spending the night at a friend's home, or is it necessary only for a week-end or longer?

I will have to spend the night at the home of the young man I go with, next week, after a dance, and I wonder if you would type the sort of note I should send to his mother, that is, if such a note is required.

E.

Although usually it is not essential that we write a bread and butter letter to thank for an overnight visit, there are many occasions when our good judgment suggests that this letter should be written. And the circumstance that you mention is distinctly one of these. Naturally the mother of your friend hopes that a friend of her son will have excellent manners and a gracious sense of appreciation of her hospitality.

So I suggest that you write her, the day after your return home, a note something like this:

Dear Mrs. Allen:

You were most kind and most friendly to invite me to spend the night at your home, and I do want to tell you how very especially I appreciated your hospitality. It was such a joy to meet you and your family, after the glowing accounts Tom gave me of you, and—he wasn't a bit too enthusiastic in his eulogies!

Thank you all for your perfect hospitality ... it was a memory-making visit I had with you. I do hope that when you come to my city you will let me know and will come to see us. Will you?

Best wishes to you and to Mr. Allen, and thank you again for your goodness to me.

Very sincerely yours,

Children's Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to teach children to say "Yes, ma'am" to their mother?

Should they answer others with "Yes, ma'am" and "No, ma'am?"

Should "Yes, sir" be used when speaking to men?

MRS. B.

Instead of teaching our children to say "Yes, ma'am," and "No, ma'am," and "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," it is far better to ask them to add to the yes or the no, Mother and Father, or Aunt Mary and Uncle Tom, or the formal name, Mrs. Allen or Mr. Allen.

You will grant at once, I am sure, that the use of the name sounds better than the "ma'am" or "sir."

"Yes, Mother." "No, Father." "Yes, Aunt Mary." "Thank you, Mrs. Allen." They have a gracious sound, and especially when the well-trained, friendly child says them.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

How often a woman should shampoo her hair depends upon what kind of hair she has—dry or oily—and whether or not her royal crown is subjected to a dusty atmosphere. A head tubbing once a week does no harm, if a live crackling suds is used and the rinsing is thorough. Only a bath spray or a shower will pound out the cleansing agent. A quick cold rinsing at the end serves as a tonic to the scalp, but it won't do if hair is naturally curly or has acquired a permanent wave.

Business girls, tramping through the activities of the day, should make it a point to eat luncheon in some quiet, restful place and to throttle the impulse to bolt their chow and be on their way. A sandwich, a green salad and a glass of milk form a balanced meal and won't put on any adipose cushions. Heavy luncheons aren't so good when the afternoon work awaits, though some members of the grouchy sex seem to be able to get away with them, and no harm done.

Lillian Waives Objections to Marion's Attendance at Party

"If that isn't just like a woman!" Harry Underwood quoted with a grin, as Lillian said that she wondered whether Mary's decision was the result of my eloquence or because of something in Noel's letter which Mary did not like. "Gets what she wants, then begins to tear holes in the covering to see what the sawdust inside looks like. What does it matter why she said yes, as long as she said it?"

"Nothing that you or any other man could understand," his wife returned witheringly.

"Aha!" Mr. Underwood retorted imperturbably. "That inflection means I'd better travel away from here for a little space. My sage counsel is no longer needed. All right, oh sapient spouse, what wouldst of me?"

"I wouldst," Lillian said with the smile which her husband's ridiculous raillery always evokes, "that you travel to the lower floor pronto and tell Marion I'd like to see her."

"Selfish," her big husband said. "Why not let me break the glad news to her that she's going to the party?"

Lillian's eyes were suddenly soft. I had grown to recognize the look. It is the one which always comes into her eyes when her husband says something which indicates the affection which is his for his winsome stepdaughter, whose prejudice against him had made both her mother and himself miserable for so many weary days but who was now, in her own schoolgirl parlance, "simply tacky" about him.

"Of course," she assented. "But when you've told her, send her up here anyway. If she's going we'll have to go into a clothes session."

"Don't let Carolyn outshine her," he warned as he went out of the door, and Lillian looked after him with shining eyes.

"He'd spoil her to death if I'd let him," she said proudly, and I smiled back at her with heartfelt joy in her happiness. She had more reason for her gratitude to her husband than she guessed, I told myself, for my interview with Mary had explained the reason for Harry's insistence that she go down to the Brixtons with Marion, and also had increased my respect, already needing no increase, for the big man's keenness of perception and delicacy of maneuver. He had discovered Charles Owen's wish to marry Marion, something which the rascally half-brother of Samuel Brixton undoubtedly thought was not yet evident to anyone, so careful was he to conceal his attentions to her behind the guise of his pseudo "uncleship" to Carolyn Brixton. That Mr. Underwood was determined Lillian should not know of this complication—with its attendant terror for her—as long as he could keep it from her, I was sure. That he was relying not only upon Mary as a guard against Owen's machinations, but upon the strong attraction between Marion and Ronald. Did he perhaps hope to have Ronald's eyes opened, and thus an ally in the Brixton home?

The sound of running feet on the stairs called me back from conjecture to reality, and the next minute brought Marion, wild with delight, to her mother's side.

"Oh! you darling, darling Mummy!" she said exuberantly. "Dad says you and he have agreed that I can go."

I felt a sympathetic little thrill at the joy which I knew was in Lillian's heart at her daughter's conjunction of her stepfather's name with hers in her unconscious recognition of their authority over her movements. That anxious time of Marion's rebellion was over now, so completely that even the memory of it was fast fading from our minds.

"Yes, darling," Lillian's voice held the lilt which is always in it when she speaks to her idolized child. "Of course it's really absurd. You've barely reached home, but I suppose—"

"Youth must be served," Marion quoted, laughing and rubbing her cheek against her mother's. "If only Mary would go too!"

Lillian and I exchanged a quick glance in mutual comprehension of Harry Underwood's discretion. He had given no hint to Marion that he and Lillian were permitting this trip only on condition that Mary accompanied her. We knew that Mary would be equally discreet, and I spoke quickly:

"I wish Mary would go also. It would do her a world of good. Why don't you coax her a bit? I really believe that's all she needs."

"Honestly?" Marion was half way to the door as she spoke. "Just watch me put on a coaxing act! It's the very best thing I do."

"I'll be along in a minute or two to see you strut your stuff," her mother told her fondly. "And then we'll discuss clothes. You really ought to have one or two new frocks. We can run over to Southampton and get them."

"Oh!—oh!" Marion was breathless as she dashed away.

"I must see that Mary has something new, also," I said a little later when Lillian rose to follow her daughter. "Let me know what Marion is taking, and I'll look after Mary."

"You would," Lillian said fondly, and went away, leaving me alone with my baby daughter. But only a minute of solitude was mine, for Katherine's voice sounded behind me.

"Ah! you're alone!" she said. "I'm so glad! I want you to read this."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Sound Teeth Depend on Diet and Cleanliness

Dr. Copeland

Every day evidence accumulates to prove that good teeth depend almost entirely upon proper diet. Much experimental work is being done in this field.

No matter where we go we see signs and other advertisements telling us of the importance of proper cleansing of the teeth. Various tooth pastes and mouthwashes are advocated to prevent tooth decay.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their toothbrushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices and to massage the gums. Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

In spite of the increased use of the toothbrush, tooth decay has continued to increase. It is now evident to most dentists and physicians, to all who are interested in this great problem, that cleansing the teeth once or twice a day is not alone sufficient to prevent the spread of decay.

Unless the diet is the proper one, all the care that we can give the teeth will not preserve them. Of course, it is not contended that if the diet is correct it is proper to overlook the daily hygiene of the teeth. Diet and cleanliness should go hand in hand.

Not long ago a series of interesting experiments were started in England and in this country. These experiments, though not done on human beings, gave important information as to the part the diet plays in the care of the teeth.

As a result of these experiments it was definitely proved that the outer layer of the teeth, which is spoken of as the "enamel," is the layer which resists decay. When there is a poor diet this layer may be destroyed, showing cracks or areas of roughness which allow the decay to enter the deeper parts and to permit infection.

To keep the enamel in proper condition it is important that the diet should contain sufficient lime, phosphorus and other food elements. There should be plenty of substances yielding vitamin D. This assists in the growth of the teeth and insures strong bone development.

Foods which supply these demands of the teeth are the foods which should be contained in everybody's daily diet. They include plenty of milk, butter and eggs. These are the most common foods which will supply this vitamin and insure good lime development. Such foods as cod-liver oil, fish oils, suet, butter and egg yolk are highly recommended.

Accidents to Children

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

We are very apt to regard accidents as unhappy things which fall on us from the skies, whereas they are often results of our own unpreparedness or carelessness, maybe not at the time of the mishap, but long before that time.

The supervisor of a recent New York City child safety demonstration discovered that among the mental causes of accidents to children are "low intelligence, worry, weariness, day-dreaming, love of adventure and rebellion against authority."

These are mental causes, not physical, but they deserve consideration as a groundwork for prevention of accidents.

Low intelligence, unless there is something congenitally wrong with a child, can be eradicated by education, parent interest in the child's progress and patient aid in achieving that progress.

A child shouldn't have to worry, nor be weary. Parent intelligence, interest and experience can smooth out these two difficulties. The family physician can help in cases of habitual weariness, which is usually a sign of a physical or emotional condition that needs a drastic remedy.

Day-dreaming and love of adventure seem to go hand in hand, for day-dreaming can be overcome by giving the child a chance for legitimate adventure in his play, in excursions to see new and interesting things, in hikes, outdoor sports, etc., which fill this need to see what is beyond the front gate.

Rebellion against authority will be missing from a child's nature if the first authority he meets, namely, mother and father, do not ABUSE their authority, but are reasonable and fair.

These mental causes are worth pondering over, worth eliminating from your child's normal risks of accidents.

A Harmless Prescription, but it ends Constipation!

DON'T you want this way of making the bowels behave? A doctor's way to make the bowels move so well that you feel better all over! Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin doesn't turn everything to water, but cleans out all that hard waste clogging your system. It cleans you out without any shock, for it's only fresh, laxative herbs a famous doctor found so good for the bowels, combined with pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Let Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin show you how soon you can train the bowels to move freely, every day, the way they should. It's wonderful the way this prescription works, but it's perfectly harmless, so you can use it whenever a coated tongue or sick headache gives warning that you are bilious. Fine for children, too, (it tastes so nice) and they ought to have a spoonful the minute they seem fretful, feverish, or sluggish, or become stuffed-up with a cold.

You can get the original prescription Dr. Caldwell wrote so many years ago; your druggist keeps it all ready in big bottles. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and use it any time anyone in the family is constipated.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

ONCE EVERY YEAR, the column turns its attention to the gentle sport of riding horses. Not that I have any cowboy instincts or harbor any desire to invade the territory that belongs to Paul Revere. It simply happens that—once a year—I get a bit fed up with cabarets and masters of ceremonies and decide to try something new.

The thing usually hapepns this way. I am sitting in a night club around 5 o'clock in the morning. The air is hot and the music is terrible. It's too early to go to bed and too late to go anywhere else. The dawn and the yawn are breaking at the same time. What to do?

Suddenly, for no good reason, I think of Central Park. Good old Central Park, where the birdies chirp and the squirrels flit. Where the flowers bloom in peaceful serenity and the gasoline fumes are liable to knock you dizzy at any moment. Good old Central Park.

When this dangerous thought arrives, my mind immediately jumps—once a year, mind you—to horses. Not the kind that gives you a headache, but the kind that gives a backache. A nice, gentle, kindly animal that permits you to jump on his back and then carries you through the park without so much as a single grunt or glance of disapproval. That's the kind of a nag I like.

That was the thought that came to me one early morning last week. And that's how it happens that I am telling you this story . . .

I was sitting in one of those dull and dreary cabarets in the company of a gentleman who is known to Broadway as Mr. Marc Lachman. Mr. Lachman is a press agent, but he manages to make himself agreeable nevertheless.

Mr. Lachman shows very little trace of ever having done any exercise whatsoever. Not that I am fond of exercise myself—but this Marc Lachman is in terrible shape. His cheeks are puffed. And down around the midriff two tummies grow where but one was born to blush unseen.

I looked at Lachman. Dawn was breaking. The night club was terribly dull. I thought suddenly of Central Park. A horse. A gentle ride. Quiet. Away from everything. Let tomorrow take care of itself. Peace.

"Marc," I said, suddenly, "let's go horseback riding."

Lachman looked up with a start. Into his eyes came a gleam of terror. He edged slightly away.

"Horses?" he murmured. "Horses? You mean those big animals that they ride in the movies?"

I nodded. And gripped his hand.

"Listen, Marc," I cried, "we both need exercise. Riding a horse is the finest exercise in the world. I only go once a year—but I love it. You forget your troubles. You forget about Broadway. Once that horse begins to bounce you, you forget about everything. What do you say?"

Lachman shook his head violently. He looked at me as though I had suddenly gone mad.

"Not for me," he yodeled. "Do I look crazy? I've never been on a horse in my life and I've passed the age where a fellow likes to try things. Let me alone. I'm going home."

I seized him by the arm. Not so easily was he going to get away. I wanted company on this ride.

"You're a sap," I murmured pleasantly. "You need that kind of exercise more than anything else in the world. Get rid of all that fat. Look at yourself. You're too doggone plump. You can work it all off with one horseback ride."

He glanced at me. With a different expression.

"Do you really think it might do some good?" he questioned.

I grabbed the opportunity. He was nibbling at the bait.

"Marc," I insisted, "it's the one thing that will help you. It's helped thousands and thousands of others. Why not you?

"Let me give you a specific example. Come along to the riding academy with me and I'll introduce you to a man named Mr. Smith. Smith is the owner of the stable, and although he must be close to 60, he's the healthiest individual you ever laid your eyes on."

Lachman was listening intently now. He was as good as hooked.

"Smith's cheeks are pink and his eyes are as clear as can be," I continued hurriedly, "and he admits that he owes it all to riding horses. He rides six and even and eight hours a day. Come on along and meet this fellow. And then, if you don't want to ride, that's up to you."

Lachman agreed to go. That reducing speech got him. Five minutes later, we were on our way . . .

On the way to the stable, I did nothing but sell Smith to Lachman. I pointed out that health and horses went hand in hand.

"Never," I informed him, "have you ever seen a man with as healthy an appearance as this man Smith. And he owes his health to riding horses. Just wait. You'll see."

Our cab reached the stable. I jumped out with Lachman beside me. I rang the bell and a sleepy colored man stuck his head out of the door.

"Good morning," I cried cheerily. "I haven't been around here for a year or so, but we want a couple of horses for this morning. By the way—is Mr. Smith up yet?"

The colored boy yawned mightily.

"No, sah, boss," he murmured, "an' he ain't likely to be. Mr. Smith died six months ago."

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But they [illegible] them for a book!)

That Texas Guinan, who is always the life of the party, and who is my favorite sweetheart, left Saturday from 1619 B'way at noon. I'd have been there, but I can't get up that early.

And that I'm really glad she left New York for the other cities—so I finally can get some sleep!

That the Bert Balchens, the famous aviator, were blessed with a baby boy Friday, yawning.

That "Ireland Must Be Heaven for My Mother Came from There" was written by Fred Fischer, a German.

That it only takes 30 seconds (imagine—only 30 seconds!) to hook up a radio network from coast to coast.

That when a wise man wants to begin finding fault he begins by picking on himself and never gets any further.

That Sweden has no capital punishment and has had but two or three murders in the last 20 years. (Tie that!)

That August is the slowest month for the casket business and the month when most doctors take their vacations.

That the best time to eat oysters is when they are five years old.

That milk alone can support human life indefinitely.

That the State of Pennsylvania prohibits a scene (stage or screen) in which a player hiccoughs (hiccups to you!).

That Goethe and Schiller have 16 streets named after them in Berlin. (How confusing!)

That Mrs. Hayes, wife of the President, began the custom of Easter egg rolling parties in the White House in 1878.

That the current rumor that a prominent producer was broke and got his million backing from gangsters is the malarkey!

That Kate Smith, who lives at 7 Park, is taking tap dancing lessons and the tenant below threatened to move if she didn't stop rehearsing over him. She didn't and he moved! (And they strike oil!)

That the name Mark Cross, they'd have you believe, originated because he signed his name with an X. (A Greenhorn?)

That one of the recent fliers to the old country made most of his money being a bootlegger years ago near Boston.

That Geo. Van Slyke, political editor of the Sun, offered to bet anyone 100 to 1 that there wouldn't be a merger of his paper with the Post and only had one taker who couldn't resist the odds.

That the dance hall hostesses no longer average 10 cents a dance. They get a flat wage of $18 a week, without extras.

That no matter how rotten a deal you get from the market you can't sue, because the Stock Exchange is a voluntary organization.

That The Writers' Club of Hollywood is staging its monthly show which will include a sketch belittling the Pride of the Winchells. Tom J. Geraghty writes: ". . . you get shot for a final curtain."

(But I always do!)

That Joe Lewis admirers argue that he created the line: "So you can't take it, eh?" which L. Holtz employs in his act.

That there is a River Styx at Lake Hopatcong, N. J.

That the hum of an airplane motor is not really the motor, but the whir of the propeller blades.

That one of the saner proverbs is from the Arabians and goes like this: "He who knows not and knows not he knows not—he is a fool—shun him!—He who knows not and knows he knows not—he is simple—help him!—He who knows and knows not he knows, he is asleep—wake him!—He who knows and knows he knows—he is a leader—follow him!" (Look, look! He reads books!)

That Jack Dempsey doesn't have to sue Estelle Taylor for divorce, after all. She is shot dead in "Street Scene." (Joke.)

That in Danville, Tenn., a square and fair mercantile firm named Outlaw, Gamble and Steel did a thriving business.

That tea contains twice as much caffiene as coffee.

That if you are normal then your left ear possesses a greater sense of hearing than your right ear.

That the great inventor Thomas A. Edison's estate grounds are lit by gas lights and not by electricity.

That clean, healthy human skin kills 90 per cent of all disease germs 10 minutes after they park on it.

That Herbert Hoover is the first President of the United States to have a telephone on his desk.

And that a sign in a speakeasy reads: "Not responsible for girls left over 30 days!"

Griffith Denies Russian Idea

Disturbed by repeated reports that "The Struggle," his latest picture, deals with the Five-Year Plan of the Russian Soviets, David Wark Griffith yesterday broke his silence of several weeks to announce that his latest United Artists film is thoroughly American and espouses no cause, foreign nor domestic.

"I cannot imagine," declared the veteran director, "where these stories started. Perhaps they were caused by the title of the film, for certainly Stalin and his Russian cohorts are having their struggle. My picture has nothing whatever to do with any government, nor with politics nor political programs of any kind. And, what is most important, it is not propaganda.

" 'The Struggle' is the story of a little group of human beings, such as we meet every day of our lives. They are American, and of the present day. Their story is certain to strike home to every American. But, for once in my life, I am going to adhere rigidly to my resolve not to divulge the nature of that story until I flash it upon the screen."

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Three Little Girls," as any poker player will tell you, are good enough to "open" with in any language, so Manager George M. Young, of the Alvin, proclaims his hand in advance, although expecting to "draw" to them and show "a full house" tonight. The season's opener is an operetta in 17 scenes, the presentation of which will be facilitated by the use of a revolving stage for the first time in Pittsburgh. Matinees will be as per usual, i. e., Wed. and Sat.

Next week the Alvin attraction will be a premiere of Billy Rose's Revue, which will have Fannie Brice, Phil Baker and Ted Healy as the luminaries, which, in the good old mother tongue, means stars.

Small Timer says that the man who laughs last at the pet story of the host has been kicked on the shin by his wife.

Lenore Ulric will be on hand to greet the celebrants at the season-opening ceremony in the Nixon next week, same being an event of Monday. Lenore will turn the pages of "The Social Register" and reveal who and what are listed thereon. John Emerson wrote some of it and Anita Loos wrote what he didn't or vice versa. Incidentally, Miss Ulric will give us a song, as we are assured on the honor of a press agent. It is called "The Key to My Heart," and was written especially for her by Lou Alter and Ira Gershwin. 'Tis a world premiere, this one, and mats will be midweek and weekend.

Small Timer says that when you don't know what to say be nonchalant and say nothing, and you won't be accused of being dumb but will be credited with being a deep thinker.

"Waterloo Bridge," with Mae Clarke and Kent Douglas, will be the attraction in the Sheridan Square beginning Friday. It was directed by James Whale, who performed the same service for that fine fillum, "Journey's End."

Dolores Del Rio to Return To Talking Screen in Willard Mack Play

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21.

All the principals for "The Dove" are now selected. The list signed is Norman Foster, who will come over from Paramount to play Johnny Powell, the American gambler.

This makes the lineup: Dolores Del Rio, as the dancer; Leo Carrillo, as "the bes dam Caballero in all Mexico," and Foster, as the girl's sweetheart.

Dolores Del Rio

Herbert Brenon expects to start the picture on the twenty-eighth. By this time the Mexican government will have passed on the script and Dolores Del Rio will have returned from Del Monte, where she has been vacationing. According to Cedric Gibbons, Dolores' health is now completely restored, and she is anxious to get back on the screen.

The Foster role in "The Dove" was played by Gilbert Roland when Norma Talmadge made a silent version of the Willard Mack play.

LESE MAJESTE

Guest of honor at a recent Hollywood party was a well-known sculptor. It was Louis Brook who referred to him as "just another chiseler."

LATEST GOSSIP

Edwina Booth, the "Trader Horn" girl, is through at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. As far as this studio was concerned, her career began and ended with the one role. And while her protracted illness with tropical fever prevented screen work for some time, it would seem that her good performance in "Trader Horn" merited a better break.

Edwina Booth

Douglas Fairbanks will make a French, Spanish and German version of his travel-talkie . . . Ethal Kenyon (lately Mrs. Edward Sutherland) is to have a part in the Fox picture, "Cheating" . . . The girl who sued Ferdinan Pinney Earle is working these days on the RKO-Pathe lot . . . Joan Bennett left the hospital on Thursday . . . Barbara Stanwyck has a new five-year contract at First National, with no options coming up until the third year. Negotiations are on to persuade Columbia to let her make one picture there, instead of three . . . Ann Harding has never bleached or waved her hair . . . Thornton Freeland, director of "Whoopee," is to do the Slim Summerville-Zasu Pitts picture for Universal.

HOLLYWOOD BY NIGHT

Cool weather has hit the roof-garden supper clubs along the boulevard. The Roosevelt Hotel, which housed one of the most successful of these dancing places, now has moved its orchestra downstairs. Hal Grayson is the new attraction there, and drew a smart crowd for his opening. Glimpsed among the diners were Lily Damita (accompanied by Michel Lessen and Sid Smith), Eric Von Stroheim and his wife, Leslie Fenton and a number of other film celebrities. Henrietta Clark, a San Francisco lass, is the featured dancer.

HARRIS URGES VOTE REFORMS TO PINCHOT

Laws to Abolish Election Thievery Advocated for Extra Session Program

Senator Frank J. Harris today sent a letter to Gov. Pinchot urging him to include consideration of legislation to end election thievery in the program of the special session of Legislature to be called for consideration of the state unemployment situation. The letter read:

"May I respectfully suggest in issuing your call for an extraordinary session of the Pennsylvania Legislature to adopt measures for the alleviation of unemployment, that you include also a program for the correction of the election evils, which have shocked the public conscience and outraged the ideals of popular government."

"In the face of ballot stuffing, the stealing of elections, the disfranchisement of thousands of citizens, the illegal issuance and use of thousands of tax receipts, the falsification of registry lists, not to overlook the violence and bloodshed which in Allegheny County and elsewhere destroyed the guarantees of the constitution, I think you will agree with me that the prompt action of constituted authorities to secure redress for the citizenry and safeguard the rights of a free and untrammeled ballot is, in present urgency, second only to the need of legislation to relieve property, employment and other causes of distress.

"A full program, covering the needs of the hour to remedy the frightful abuses which occurred at the polls last Tuesday, is already prepared, and awaits only inclusion in your call for a special session, to be formally offered and supported by every member of the Senate and House who has at heart the interest of our great state, the protection of voters in their constitutional rights, and the common decencies of democratic government."

Labor Bomb Rocks Wide Dormont Area

200 EXPECTED AT COAL CONFERENCE

DORMONT BOMBING SCENE

Where Explosive 'Let Go' on Residence Steps

HENRY HEROLD AND JAMES SLOSS INSPECTING BLAST SCENE

The point on the concrete steps at 2803 Liberty avenue where early today a powerful bomb exploded, roused residents in a mile area. Apparently, the bomb-target was Ralph Freeman, business agent for Local No. 171, Motion Picture Operators' Union, on strike.

HOME OF UNION LEADER BLAST TARGET

Chief of Striking Movie Operators Sleeps While Bomb Shatters Windows

Windows in more than a dozen buildings were broken and persons within a radius of a mile were aroused by the explosion of a bomb on the front steps of the home of Ralph Freeman at 2803 West Liberty avenue, Dormont, early today. Chief Ralph Miller, of Dormont police, said he believed black powder was used in the bomb.

Freeman, business agent for Local No. 171, Motion Picture Operators Union, now on strike at some theaters, said he could give no reason for the attempt to blow up his home. He said he had returned home about an hour before the blast, and denied reports that he had been shot at several hours before.

SLEEPS DESPITE BLAST

Although the blast was heard over the South Hills district, Freeman, who was sleeping in the rear of the house, a duplex, did not know of it until aroused by neighbors.

Slight damage was done to the steps, and a small portion of a porch roof was destroyed. Two front windows were broken. Two canaries in the apartment were uninjured.

Windows in the second floor apartment, occupied by C. R. Weber, his wife, a son, Robert, 14, and Mrs. Weber's mother, Mrs. Mary Perrett, were broken, but none of the occupants was injured.

BOMB BELIEVED PLANTED

James Sloss, of 2809 West Liberty avenue, said he heard the explosion and saw a flash. When he reached his window the street was deserted. A thick cloud of smoke hovered over the steps of the Freeman home, he said. Sloss was the one who aroused the occupants of the house.

Henry Herold, night manager of the Delrose garage, at 2752 West Liberty avenue, said he had been sitting in front of the garage for some time before the blast, and that for 10 minutes preceding the explosion no automobile passed in either direction. This convinced police that the bomb had been planted instead of thrown from a passing car, as was at first believed. James Baker, of 2804 West Liberty avenue, told police the same story.

CANAL BOOSTER TRIP THURSDAY

The Allegheny River Improvement Association will hold its thirty-fourth annual convention Thursday on board an excursion barge. Members of the Upper Allegheny River Improvement Association and the Kiskiminetas and Conemaugh Rivers Improvement Association will also attend.

Maj. William D. Styer, of the United States Engineers, who recently assumed charge of the Pittsburgh district, will be aboard, accompanied by Capt. Harry W. Hill and Congressman Nathan L. Strong, president of the association.

The delegates will board the barge at Freeport, making a stop at Garber's Ferry. Following inspections of that part of the river improved by a series of locks and dams, the party will land at Kittanning.

In order to seek favorable legislation on the early canalization of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango rivers, a delegation from Youngstown and nearby towns will attend the Ohio Valley Improvement Association convention to be held in Charleston October 5 and 6.

5TH AVE. LIGHT FETE TONIGHT

Fifth avenue's new lighting system will be officially inaugurated following a dinner in the William Penn Hotel tonight, to be attended by members of the Fifth Avenue Association and city officials. The switch throwing on the current will be operated by Edgar J. Kaufmann, a leader in the association, and John S. Herron, president of City Council, between 9:30 and 10 p. m.

The new poles with two lights each have been coated with aluminum paint. Old poles have been removed.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal.,
Sept. 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Japan has been trying to match a war with China for years and it looks like they finally made it. Russia is rehearsing to get in so this Manchuria must be a pretty valuable country. Now we will see how strong the League of Nations is. Did you read what that Argentine polo team did to America? Andrada, a cowpuncher, was the whole show. It was a great thing for polo. The social register has had its last hold on the game. The next American team will know no more about pouring tea than a Marine.

Will Rogers

Night School Year Opens Here Tonight

Night classes in Pittsburgh high schools will open tonight with an enrollment estimated at 12,000. The regular high school course of four years will be given by Schenley High, which prepares students for college. Last year 1,259 students finished the year's course. Other schools give a two-year course.

Jews Observe Yom Kippur, Most Solemn Holy Day

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most solemn celebration in the religious calendar of the Jews, was being observed today by Jewish people the world over. Services began last night in synagogues and temples and will continue until sunset tonight. The holy day is also observed by a 24-hour fast.

The closing Yom Kippur services tonight will end a 10-day period of penitence which began with the celebration of Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, on Friday night, September 11. The services at that time marked the year 5692 on the Jewish calendar.

The solemn services began with the singing of "Kol Nidre" shortly before sundown last night and will close with the blowing of the ram's horn tonight in the various temples and synagogues. The "Kol Nidre" is a plaintive chant identified with the holy day throughout the ages.

Orthodox Jewry may hear Rabbi A. M. Ashinsky in either the Beth Jacob snyagogue, Epiphany street, or in the Beth Hemedrish Hagodol congregation, Washington place. Services for Conservative Jews will be held at the Beth Shalom snyagogue, Beacon and Shady avenues, Rabbi A. Goodman Rose presiding. Dr. Samuel Goldenson and Rabbi B. Benedict Glazer will lead services for Reformed Jews in the Rodef Shalom Temple, Fifth avenue and Morewood street; and in the Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland.

Sukkoth, the feast of the tabernacle, follows closely upon Yom Kippur. This feast will be celebrated next Friday throughout the world. The harvest thanksgiving aspect of Sukkoth is beautifully portrayed in the snyagogues and temples by having the altar covered with fruits and grains. The service also marks the opening of the religious schools.

THEIR SONG EXTOLS STEPHEN FOSTER

Pittsburgh Men Singing Their Memorial Lyric

D. C. POTTER (LEFT) AND LOUISE J. PANELLA SINGING THEIR "OLD FAMILIAR SONG"

Mr. Potter, county prothonotary's clerk, and Mr. Pannella, Dormont, singing the song they wrote in tribute to Pittsburgh's Stephen Collins Foster, composer of many U. S. Negro folksongs.

Two Pittsburghers Write Stephen C. Foster Song Tribute

Two Pittsburgh men have written a song tribute to Stephen Collins Foster, composer of Negro melodies, who died January 13, 1864. D. C. Potter, clerk in the office of Prothonotary John Vogt and a resident of 107 Howard street, Millvale, wrote the lyrics for "An Old Familiar Song." Louis J. Panella, 1999 Broadway, Dormont, wrote the music.

The lyrics were inspired by a childhood experience of Potter. His father settled in Millvale in 1868, when East Ohio street was known as the Butler plank road, an extension of Ohio street. There was a toll house where the road entered Millvale, and another where the borough connected with Shaler Township, between the road and the Allegheny River.

Here Potter, as a boy, used to take walks on a summer evening to talk to the toll gate tender, Charles Geschwindt, a cornetist of Staley's Band.

Geschwindt told him a story. One summer evening as he sat in front of the toll house playing "The Old Folks at Home," two men in a skiff drifted down the Allegheny River past the toll house and paused to listen.

They left the boat and crossed the road to the foot of Samples Hill, while Geschwindt played on and on. When he had finished one of the strangers congratulated him, saying he was the only man he had ever heard who played "Swanee River" as he thought it should be played.

The "stranger" was Stephen C. Foster.

The friendship of the two men lasted until death. Foster frequently had the tollgate keeper try out his new songs, Potter said.

STORM RIPS OFF HOUSE GABLE

A gable was torn from the roof of the home of Mrs. Mary Schmeltz, 2702 Veteran street, North Side, and young trees in sections of the county were uprooted during the brief storm yesterday afternoon.

Firemen, responding to an alarm to Mrs. Schmeltz' home, spread canvas over the wrecked portion of the roof, preventing damage to the interior by rain.

The packing room of the United States Aluminum Company, at Logans Ferry, was struck by lightning, it was reported. Damage was estimated at $100. Streets were soon flooded by the rain which was accompanied with hail.

Williams was alleged to have shot the woman while she and her cousin were visiting at his home. Police said Mrs. Miles had an open penknife in her hand when Williams shot her. Williams fled.

Fate of Girl Chum, Slain in Play, Puzzles Boy, 5

Five-year-old William Hineman today stood beside the small white casket of his playmate, Agnes Bodnar, 9, of 715 Priscilla avenue, Duquesne, and wondered. He and Agnes had played school together Saturday night in his home until a gun which he had found on a mantel discharged and Agnes screamed.

William was unable to comprehend what had happened to Agnes. Friends and neighbors came and went with tears in their eyes, but still he did not understand.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mayo, grandparents of the boy, with whom he lives, said the children had been playing school in a room of their home. Agnes was "teacher" and William her "pupil." William, in a hunt for a pencil, discovered the gun on the mantelpiece. He shouted:

"I'm going to shoot you."

A shot rang out. Agnes screamed. Taken to the McKeesport Hospital, she died a few minutes after arrival.

FALK FUND AIDS IN ECONOMIC STUDY

Foundation Will Undertake Experiments in Social Problems for District

With the object of helping in the solution of economic problems, especially those confronting people of the Pittsburgh district, the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation today announced that its fund for the present would be devoted toward socially important studies and experiments.

The foundation was established in 1929 by Maurice Falk in memory of his wife Laura. It is controlled by a board of managers, of which Leon Falk Jr. is chairman and J. Steele Gow is director.

PANIC OF PLENTY

In making the announcement Gow alluded to the existing conditions as a "panic of plenty," citing that while the world is wealthy in money, goods and natural resources, millions are idle and enduring the hardships of poverty. He continued:

"The new conception—and it is shared by most of the eminent economists of the world—is that depressions represent breakdowns in an economic system which can be made increasingly subject to control.

"This point of view offers new encouragement that competent efforts to understand the intricate workings of the economic system may yield information which will enable society to mitigate the severity of depressions if it cannot prevent them.

STUDY FACTORS

"It is not to be expected that economic conditions can be quickly improved by magic formulae. Such cure-alls are often worse than the disease. However, it does seem reasonable to expect that some specific economic factors which influence depressions can be identified and studied with an intelligence which will increase our economic knowledge and our control over economic conditions in general.

"As long as opportunities to aid such studies are available to the Falk Foundation, we believe no more important use for our funds could be found."

VICTIM OF FRAY HELD FOR QUIZ

Police today were holding John James Myers, of 750 Excelsior street, on a suspicious person charge, pending an investigation of Myers' story that he was shot by a burglar early Sunday.

According to Myers, he surprised the intruder in the basement of his home and fired two shots at him. The prowler returned the fire, hitting Myers in the left side. Myers declared the man was after clothing left in his home by a friend. After his wound was dressed in Mercy Hospital, Myers was lodged in Mt. Washington Police Station.

There was no one in the house at the time of the shooting, Myers said, his wife and children having gone to visit relatives in Franklin. He surrendered a revolver to the police.

Grazing Fee Cut Refused By Hyde

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(INS)—A demand for a 30 per cent reduction in grazing fees on national forests was rejected by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde.

FILIPINO URGES BARRING U. S.

BÔNTOC, Mountain Province, P. I., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—A threat to exclude Americans from the Philippines in the event of independence has been made to Patrick J. Hurley, American secretary of war, in answer to a question he has often asked during his present tour of the islands.

Teofilo Astella, of the provincial auditor's office, had just finished an impassioned plea for independence yesterday. The Secretary asked:

"What benefits would the Filipinos have in the event of independence that they do not have now?"

Beating his chest, Astella shouted:

"We would take possession of the Benguet gold mines, located in Mountain province. The gold in them is ours. It has been taken away from us by the big hand of the Americans, like everything else. We would run the Americans out of the country."

PASTOR SCORES LIQUOR ABROAD

Speaking at the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church last night, Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan declared that consumption of intoxicating liquors in Great Britain and on the continent is constant and abundant. He based his talk on a European tour this summer. He said:

"Saloons abound everywhere as they did in America before prohibition. In the next block to my hotel I counted nine saloons, and in Liverpool, a 20-minute trolley ride showed me 54 large saloons occupying the most advantageous corners.

"The statement often made that people over there spend a whole evening over a small glass of wine and therefore do not drink much, is incorrect, for in addition to the fact that every cafe is filled with drinkers at night, the saloons are steadily patronized morning, afternoon and night. Drinking by young people is constant."

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neitner raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

COAL FIRM SUES FOR TAX REBATE

The Hecla Coal and Coke Company today filed suit in Federal Court against D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue in Pittsburgh, seeing to recover $1,260,368.79, with interest from 1926, which the company contends the government erroneously collected as excess profits taxes for 1918, 1919 and 1920. The suit was filed by A. B. Sheets, vice president of the company.

In its bill the company claims that it filed a consolidated return with the J. H. Hillman and Sons Company and affiliated companies, and the Hillman company paid the excess profits tax claims for all. The Commissioner of Revenue some time ago ruled the Hecla company was not affiliated with the Hillman company and proceeded to collect its taxes. The Hillman company has a suit in the Court of Appeals at Washington seeking to recover $5,000,000 for taxes declared to have been erroneously collected.

Bomb Damages Home Of Union Executive

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The home of William F. Cleary, financial secretary of the Electrical Workers' Union, was damaged by a bomb. Cleary and two members of his family escaped injury.

Police said Cleary was a member of the "Board of Estimates," composed of five union members who allegedly dictated which contractors should obtain electrical and building work from the Board of Education. Mortimer P. Enright, another alleged member of the board, was shot and killed several weeks ago.

'Dumb' Man Finds Voice as Judge Says $25

After Charles Thompson, 19, of New Orleans, had written his name and address and a note stating that he was deaf and dumb for Magistrate T. D. Jones in Morals Court today the latter imposed a fine of $25 or 30 days in the workhouse. Thompson cried:

"What's that?"

"I thought you were deaf and dumb."

"That's the boloney, judge. Everybody else does it so I thought I would get a few nickles, too."

Jones was arrested Saturday, police testified, while posing as a mute and soliciting money from tenants of the Grant Building.

CHURCH ATTACK JAILS 23

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 21—(AP.)—Unable to secure bail, 23 men and women were prisoners in the Luzerne County Jail here today, facing charges of circulating seditious literature. They were arrested yesterday at Pittston, near here, after circulating copies of a magazine, Golden Age, alleged to contain attacks on established Christian religions and Judge Alfred Valentine, local jurist.

Included in those in custody was Clayton Woodward, Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y., editor of the magazine, which is affiliated with the International Bible Students' Association. The others are residents of Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and nearby communities.

"I want to tell you— that red-blood cells are the very foundation of sturdy health"

—worth knowing:

—let's pause a moment to give those vital red cells the consideration they deserve. They mean so much for better health and happiness.

It is not fair to expect one to like work or to enjoy play with a "lowered" blood count.

So often the reason is simple—that good body of ours has "run-down" under the strain of our way of living . . . pressure of work and worry.

If this is your trouble why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

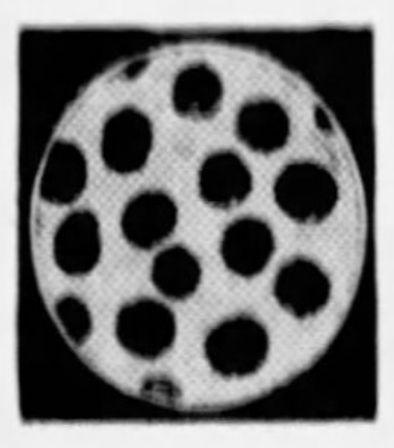
For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is important to know that the red-blood-cells are the "ships" that sail in the blood stream and carry nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body . . . they build and sustain—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

Whenever the number of red-blood-cells is materially reduced, lowered vitality ensues and the system becomes more susceptible to the ravages of various diseases. It is a great protection to health and physical well being to keep the red-blood-cell count up to normal.



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

CAUTION URGED ON AUTOISTS

Motorists of this district were warned today by the Pittsburgh Motor Club of the approaching season when danger of skidding becomes greater due to the slippery surface of wet leaves on the streets. This source of danger is increased by motorists who drive on worn out tires, the lack of treads not permitting a proper grip on the road.

Statistics from reports of the Pittsburgh Motor Club show that more motorists are driving on worn out tires this year than at any other time. According to a similar report there have been 71 more automobile fatalities in the state this year than for the same period in 1930.

'CLINIC' SLATED FOR RETAILERS

A merchandizing clinic conducted by A. J. Luther, of Chicago, will be one of the features of the "Fall Market Week" here September 29 to October 2 under auspices of the wholesalers' council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Luther, who has served as business consultant in the United States and Canada, will give free lectures to visiting retailers on training of salespeople, controlling stock turnover, sales promotion, advertising and modern business practices.

Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of Kaufmann's department store, will be the principal speaker at the opening banquet Tuesday night, September 29. The project is designed to serve retailers of the tri-state area and to encourage them to do their buying in Pittsburgh.

It is expected the Market Week will draw hundreds of retailers within a 100-mile radius of the city and at least 500 wholesalers and retailers will attend the opening banquet.

Macks Set Slab Marks. • Street Hurts Buc Chance.
First With Three 20s. Golf's Uncertain Year.
Final Local Series On. Oswald After Cue Title.

A'S TRIO TOPS JAMES-RUDOLPH-TYLER

WHEN RUBE WALBERG pitched his twentieth victory of the season for the Athletics against the White Sox on Saturday, two major league hurling records were created. The total number of victories scored by Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw and Walberg reached a figure that established a new mark for games won in a season by three members of one slab staff, and it marked the first time that as many as three flingers on one club won 20 or more contests each in the same year.

Rube Walberg

Walberg's latest win means that Connie Mack's three mound stars have captured a total of 70 decisions by their combined efforts. Grove has bagged 30, and Earnshaw and Walberg 20 each. This breaks a record that has stood for 17 years in the big show, surpassing the famous feat of the three-man staff of the Boston Nationals in 1914 when Bill James, Dick Rudolph and George Tyler turned in 69 victories. James won 26 and lost seven games that season, Rudolph won 27 and lost 10, while Tyler won 16 and lost 14, a record of 69 games won out of exactly 100 pitched.

GROVE, EARNSHAW AND Walberg not only have beaten the long-standing record of the old Brave trio for number of games won in a single campaign but their showing in the lost column also is much better than was that of the three Boston hurlers who in 1914 pitched George Stallings' club to the most sensational pennant victory in major league history after the outfit had occupied last place as late as [illegible].

For whereas Boston's three stars lost a total of 31 games while winning 69, only 22 defeats are charged up to Mack's Big Three against their 70 triumphs. Grove has lost only three games against James' seven. Earnshaw has lost only seven against Rudolph's 10 and Walberg has lost only 12 against Tyler's 14. Against the Boston trio's percentage of .690 Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg have a mark of .761 to date.

NEW HEIGHTS ARE reached in major league pitching when three members of one staff win 76 per cent of their games in a year. As a rule a club is fortunate to have even one regular chucker capable of winning such a percentage of his games.

Too, as an individual mark, it's often high enough to give the pitcher making it the leadership of his league. Only four times in the last 22 years has the individual leader of the National League made a higher percentage—Bill James with .788 in 1914, Adolfo Luque with .771 in 1923, Dazzy Vance with .769 in 1924, and Remy Kremer with .769 in 1926.

THE CLOSEST APPROACH to the record of the A's in having three 20-game winners in one year was recorded in 1906, when the Cubs set the major record for victories in a season at 116. Three-Finger Brown won 26 and Jack Pfiester won 20, but Ed Reulbach was stopped at 19. Jack Taylor won 20, but he was a Cub only part of the season and pitched in 17 games for the Cardinals before going to the Bruins. The Cubs also failed to flash more than two 20-game winners in their two other big pennant years of that period. In 1907 Orvall Overall won 23 and Brown 20, and in 1908 Brown won 29 and Reulbach 24, but no other member of the mound corps was able to win more than 18 in either season.

Burt Shotton

THE FINAL ACT of Pittsburgh's baseball season takes the stage with the opening of the Pirates' series with Burt Shotton's Phillies. The third game of the set with the Quakers on Wednesday will wind up the local campaign, and only two games in Chicago next Saturday and Sunday will remain for the Bucs.

An even break for the season is the best the Pirates can get with the Phils, who have done much to hold the Rovers back in the race this year by beating them 11 times in 19 meetings. Shotton has done a creditable managerial job with the Quakers. They have won 11 games more than they captured last year and promise to land two notches higher in the standing.

HAVING FAILED TO do better than split even in 22 games with the Braves, who made their farewell appearance here Saturday, the Pirates will end the season with the honors to their credit in only one series, that against Cincinnati.

The Corsairs have beaten the Reds 16 times in 22 clashes, but have been edged out or held even by every other club in the circuit. The locals have a good chance to get an even break for the season as a whole and finish at the .500 mark. Three out of five will do the trick.

IT'S ALL WELL enough for a manager to give his regulars a reasonable amount of rest after he has clinched a pennant and is preparing for a world series, but Gabby Street wasn't dealing fairly with the Pirates when he carried the thing to extremes by going in to catch as part of a misfit lineup against Brooklyn yesterday. With the Bucs having at least a mathematical chance to beat out the Robins for a first division berth, Street, who had not caught in a big league game since he was with the Yankees in 1912, was denying the locals a sportsmanlike break when he weakened his club to an extent that made victory easy for Pittsburgh's rivals.

THE LURE OF professional baseball has cost Harry Stuhldreher one of his best football players. Burton (Bucky) Hammond, quarterback at Villanova and who had been counted on to be one of that team's main props this fall, has given up his gridiron career to sign a contract with the Athletics as a catcher.

Hammond was only a substitute on the college baseball team and never boasted an impressive batting average, but Mickey Cochrane saw promise in him when he worked out with the A's and recommended his signing. When offered a contract, Hammond was advised to give up football and promptly turned in his suit at Villanova.

ANOTHER RESULT THAT had not been looked for when play began was added to the dizzy record of golf's most uncertain year when Tom Creavy, 20-year-old Albany pro, won the P. G. A. title at Providence Saturday. It has been the most disastrous season in history for favorites.

Harry Oswald

That it required high grade golf to eliminate Pittsburgh players in two big tournaments is attested by the fact that Creavy, who defeated Pete O'Hara, went on to win the P. G. A. championship, and Jack Westland, who eliminated Sam Park in the national amateur, lasted all the way to the final and bowed only to Francis Ouimet. The Pittsburghers did not lose to any ordinary entrants.

THIS CITY WILL make another try for the national pocket billiard championship. Harry Oswald, local cueist, who was the sensation of the title tourney in Philadelphia in 1926, has entered the running again and is practicing daily at Charley Ellis' parlors here for the sectional eliminations, scheduled to start on October 12 in nine cities. The eastern section, in which Oswald will play, will have its North Division play in Boston, and its South Division play in Philadelphia, and the winners of the two divisions will then meet Andrew Ponzi in a playoff at New York for the right to go into the title tournament proper. About 75 men in all will compete in the preliminary playoffs. Five players, including two from the eastern section, are to qualify in the sectional play to compete for the crown later with Erwin Rudolph, Ralph Greenleaf, Arthur Woods, Frank Taberski and Onofrie Lauri.

W. P. I. A. L. CONTENDERS IMPRESSIVE

By JULIUS LEVIN

Favorites, with the exception of Butler, came through with victories in the inaugural interscholastic football battles staged Saturday. The only upset of the day was the 6-to-0 victory Vandergrift registered at the expense of the Butler High School eleven at Butler.

Wilkinsburg, Turtle Creek Union, Washington, Ambridge, New Brighton, Uniontown, Aliquippa, Greensburg and Jeannette, usually rated with the strongest contenders for the district championship, experienced little or no difficulty in starting their campaigns in an auspicious manner.

FAVORITES WIN

Wilkinsburg started with a 13-0 victory over Crafton. Turtle Creek Union swamped Pitcairn under a 26-0 setback. Washington romped away from Waynesburg 34-0. Ambridge defeated its ancient rival, Monaca, 6-0. New Brighton conquered Grove City 32-0. Uniontown defeated North Union 7-0. Aliquippa defeated Rochester, 8-6. Greensburg scored a 13-6 victory over East Huntingdon and Jeannette swamped Sewickley, 31-0.

All contenders for the W. P. I. A. L. title, judging from reports, appeared impressive in their inaugural battles, although the majority showed flaws that will have to be ironed out before the stronger opposition is engaged. However, considering that Saturday's games were openers, the championship contenders showed up as well as could be expected.

AWAIT OPENERS

Friday fans following the fortunes of the City League schools will be given a chance to see their favorites in action. Schenley plays at Oliver, Swissvale at Allderdice, South Hills at Peabody, Fifth Avenue at Carrick and Langley at Dormont. The Swissvale-Allderdice and Langley-Dormont affairs are non-league contests.

School Notes

Ambridge's 6-0 victory over Monaca marked the third year in a row Moe Rubenstein's eleven has defeated its valley rival by that count. Ambridge has not been beaten in two years and has not been scored on in its last 10 games.

Coach Lewis F. (Hank) Day's Washington High eleven showed unusual preseason power in mowing under Waynesburg, 34-0. However, the Little Presidents are running true to their usual form. A championship race without Washington as a contender would be a strange affair. Day has had a contender in the race ever since he took over the coaching reins at Washington.

Nate Lippe's Aliquippa eleven, usually one of the strongest in the Beaver Valley, had to show its best form to triumph over Rochester, 8 to 6. With a little more polish that comes with active competition, Aliquippa is going to be a factor in the Beaver Valley scholastic fight this fall.

One of the headliners on this week's scholastic program is slated for Scott Field, North Braddock, next Friday night when Coach Steve Stephanian brings his Charleroi gridders to that park to oppose Johnny Reed's championship contenders. All Charleroi did in its opening game last Friday was a [illegible] victory over Ellsworth-Cokeburg. Scott won its first game at the expense of Scottdale the same night, 21-13.

Other good attractions slated for Saturday find Swissvale at Wilkinsburg, Westinghouse at Greensburg, Rochester at Ambridge, Allegheny at Beaver Falls, South at Altoona, Trafford at Turtle Creek and Monaca at Beaver.

Time of game—3:30 p. m.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Sam Watters and Jack Fogarty, director and stage manager of all Forbes Field productions, are getting set to drop the curtain on baseball and, inasmuch as the Phillies are in town for the event, it is apparent that the last show will be sadder than the third act of "East Lynne."

Down in St. Louis yesterday, the Cardinals tried to give the closing days a comic relief that was anything but funny to the Buccos when they looked at the Redbird lineup. The Buccos had a little chance to beat the Robins out of fourth place money, but when Gabby Street elected to go under the bat with a misfit lineup supporting him, the Buccaneer considerations were almost eliminated.

No, the Pirates this morning were not getting a card of thanks ready for Gabby. What they wanted him to do was to play out the string, and this should have been done in fairness to all contenders for the money. The Brooklyn flock naturally ran away with the game, and the Pirates have only a slight mathematical chance to forge ahead into the first division in their remaining five games.

LAST GAME WEDNESDAY

Manager Ens, of the home team, stated today he would assign Bill Harris to Fogarty Knoll in the first battle of the three-game series with the Quakers. The home batters expect to face Jim Elliot, who is generally on hand to heckle the Freebooters every time the Quakers are in sight of the Pittsburgh players. But the Buccos have been hitting more effectively lately and they have a surprise in store for the big left-hander.

The third clash of the series, scheduled for Wednesday, is the last contest on the Pirates' home card. After they have wound up their play at the Oakland Orchard they will be faced with two open dates, but the Pirates will be engaged on these occasions. Arrangements have been made to stage two exhibition games in Grand Rapids, Mich., on Thursday and Friday. The Buccos will hurry to Chicago Friday night to be ready to close their books for the year in two contests with the Cubs.

MEINE IN LIMELIGHT

There is a chance that Heinie Meine will reach the 20 mark in victories, judging by the outlook for the remaining games. Heinie will work one of the battles with the Quakers and if he cops this game it is likely he will get the opportunity to add the coveted triumph when the club gets to Chicago. There is a likelihood that the league will not have one single sharpshooter who will get that many successes this year.

The Pirates can gain the .500 mark today, provided they take the measure of the Phillies. For the past several weeks the play of the Pittsburgh club has been as brilliant as that of any team in baseball. But Our Boys are three full games below the fourth-place Robins at this late hour.

TUBE ELEVEN GRID VICTOR

By TOM BIRKS

Sandlot fans took a peek at three of the leading Independent Gridiron Conference clubs in action yesterday afternoon. The McKeesport Olympics clashed with Ellwood City at Olympia Park and defeated the visitors, 19 to 0, before a large crowd.

East Pittsburgh Firemen went in against the Armstrong Bulldogs, of the South Side, and a hectic battle finished 0-0.

West View defeated the Mingo Junction club in its opening independent attraction, Manager Paul Muzzio's outfit winning, 6 to 0.

The Olympics dedicated Olympia Park to big-time football with a large crowd filling the spacious stands. Manager Boyer and Coach Socks Reed have banded a fine club to fight for the crown now held by Art Rooney.

KARCIS SCORES

Ellwood City put up a great battle, and the early touchdown came from a combined effort of Goldberg and Peeny Newlin, a short forward pass around left end taking the ball over.

John Karcis, former Carnegie Tech luminary, went in late in the first half and scored a touchdown in the third quarter. Ganzy Benedict, who starred on the college gridiron for the Dukes, intercepted a forward pass on his own goal line and ran 99 yards to score.

Boyer has a great backfield. Hooks Carroll was the outstanding star, although Goldberg, Newlin, Karcis, Benedict and Edwards all appeared good.

Ludwig, former Christy Park end, is going to make English and Tom McCurdy step for the end position. He is as fast as a flash. Ellwood made seven first downs.

COLTS SQUARE M.-A. SERIES

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Cumberland's Colts again evened the count in the Middle Atlantic League championship series yesterday by defeating the Charleston Senators, 3 to 2. The victory places the teams on an even basis of two wins each in the series.

The game was a pitchers' battle throughout, with Chip Helmick hurling for the Colts and Joe Martin on the mound for Charleston. Helmick held the Senators to seven hits, while Martin allowed six.

The Colts held a one-run lead until the fifth and then pushed across a second tally on a double by Davis. Charleston scored its first marker in the sixth.

The winning run was scored by the Colts in the seventh when Davis doubled, went to third on an error by Zupancic, on third base for the Senators, and scored when Helmick forced Shea, left-fielder, at second.

Approximately 4,500 paid admissions were marked up at the box office. The score:

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—There's one bench warmer who won't be doing dugout duty in this World Series, and I mean Jim Bottomley, of the Cards. Since last June Bottomley has come back like a bouncing check. Last spring they were ready to crate and ship him to some whistle stop to play ball. In the 1930 World Series Sunny Jim was a bust. He was more than a bust—he was a whole equestrian statue. And he started this season right where he left off last fall.

Nick Altrock

I don't know what elixir Jim has been swigging at, but if I could get a dozen bottles of it you would see old Uncle Nicholas in the box having pitching duels with Lefty Grove, and no seconds in the bull pen.

DAVIS-ELKINS' SQUAD SMALL, EXPERIENCED

HENDERSON HAS FINE ARRAY OF VETS

(This is the eleventh of an annual series of special articles, written by Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football writer, dealing with the prospects of tri-state district elevens. The article on Westminster will appear in Wednesday's issue.)

By JESS CARVER
Staff Correspondent

ELKINS, W. Va., Sept. 21.—The stage appears to be set for another good football year here at Davis-Elkins, where Crafty Cam Henderson holds forth both on football and philosophy. Cam's football comes first, his chief philosophy being that it's better to give the big tough ones a good fight than to wallop the little ones.

Davis-Elkins annually sports the smallest squad, in point of numbers, in the Tri-State district and there are few schools in the entire country of any account with fewer players. Henderson won't work with a squad of over 28 men, but they have to be football players. The catch, as far as all and sundry opposition is concerned, is that usually they ARE footballers.

PLAYERS EXPERIENCED

This year's Hurricane squad boasts 15 lettermen and 11 holdovers who've had more or less experience. The team is captained by the veteran Albert Hawley, Indian star, who won all-America mention as a center two years ago, but has been shifted to quarterback, and Kerr Whitfield, an end. Hawley ran the team from center last year, so the field general post is not new to him. He'll be the key man of the backfield.

At fullback, Crafty Cam is employing Les Corzine, a 190-pounder. Corzine is an exceptionally able line-wrecker and, according to Cam, second to none in backing up the line.

He'll have for an understudy Carroll Talbott, a reserve back last year. Talbott weighs only 160 pounds, but is a fast and elusive runner.

Ellis Vest, a wing last year, and a newcomer, Argus Winters, a pip of a forward passer, are slated for starting jobs at the halfbacks. Vest has taken on weight, tipping the beam at 165 pounds, which is heavy for him. He's an able pass receiver. Harry Shelton, the speed merchant of the squad, a letterman, and Ben Fluharty, from Mannington, W. Va., High, head the list of reserve halfbacks.

Hawley, of course, is a fixture at quarter. If a replacement is needed, Harold Woodford or Joe Pease may get some work. It looks, however, as though the depression was going to last a long time for reserve quarterbacks here.

WALLACE AT CENTER

Cam has just turned his center and quarterback about for this year. He's moved Hawley into the backfield and big Jim Wallace, a 198-pound chunk, to the snapperback post. Wallace was a good blocking back last year, but not fast enough for a ball carrier. He and Corzine likely will back up the line.

The guard positions will be filled by Bob Markowitz, who was moved into the center of the line from an end last year, and either Fairbanks or Kapp. Kapp was used at center last fall. Fairbanks is a versatile footballer, having performed at halfback, quarter, end and guard so far. He's another ace defensive man.

The kicking will be handled by George Gilkerson, 190 pounds, who'll also play right tackle. Gilkerson will be paired with either Watring or Ingram, with the latter the likely first choice due to his edge in weight. He goes 195, Watring weighs 180.

Co-captain Kerr Whitfield and the veteran Myrl Kepner figure to perform right regularly at the wings. Both are fast and fine tacklers. Roy Key, also a letterman, and Thurman Hodges, a local high school product, furnish the reserve strength.

SCHEDULE DIFFICULT

The Senators are slated to battle through a rugged 11-game schedule. St. Vincent offered the opposition in the inaugural last Saturday. Concord State will be played here this week, and South Dakota University is to meet the Hurricane in the annual Harvest Festival game here October 3.

The team will play three night games in a row after meeting the Dakotians, playing Lincoln Memorial University, of Harrigate, Tenn., at Clarksburg, October 9; St. John's College in New York October 16, and St. Francis at Johnstown the week following.

On October 31, Georgia State College will come here. St. Thomas is to be met at Scranton November 7 and St. Louis U. at St. Louis November 13 in another night game. The Senators and U. S. Marine Corps elevens will play an indoor game in the Atlantic City Auditorium November 21 and the season will close with a clash with Morris-Harvey at Huntington November 25, also a nocturnal engagement.

JACK MAY TRY COMEBACK

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Jack Dempsey's brief exhibition tour in the far West has dispelled almost all doubt about his second comeback.

It seems certain that Dempsey will fight again as soon as he has exhausted the financial possibilities of his exhibition tour. The only hitch probably will be whether a promoter will pay his price. Dempsey will probably ask $500,000.

GUNN BEATEN IN FINAL AT PINE VALLEY

PINE VALLEY, N. J., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—C. Bayard Mitchell, of Woodbury, N. J., captured the George Arthur Crump Memorial Cup yesterday with an 8-and-6 victory over Watts Gunn, of Pittsburgh, in the 18-hole final.

In the semi-finals, Mitchell defeated Jimmy Robbins, 5 and 3, while Gunn eliminated George F. Hackl, former amateur champion of the Chicago district, 3 and 2.

Gunn, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., was declared winner of the qualifying medal on the basis of play in the semi-final matches. He and Robbins tied at 156 in the opening 36 holes. The tournament committee ordered medal scores kept in Gunn's and Robbins' semi-final round to decide the winner. Gunn shot 82 against Robbins' poor 92.

Adams Sprains Ankle in Contest

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Sparky Adams, star third baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, sprained his left ankle yesterday while participating in a track and field meet which preceded the St. Louis-Brooklyn game. He suffered the injury while taking part in a base-circling contest. Previously he had won a bunting and running event.

Adams was unable to play, and probably will be out of action for several days. The injury, however, was not regarded as serious enough to interfere with his playing in the world series.

The Cardinals won the meet.

HOMESTEAD GRAYS SPLIT

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21.—The Homestead Grays and the Baltimore Black Sox split even in a doubleheader here yesterday. The Grays won the first, 5 to 1, and the Sox the second, 15 to 5.

LOCAL WOMEN GOLFERS IN TOURNEYS

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Two local tourneys, both of them women's events, are on today's golf calendar.

A field of more than 150 was scheduled to play today in the one-day event of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania at the Oakmont Country Club.

It will be lacking several of the district's top-ranking players, inasmuch as its home-club stalwarts — Anjeanette Hunter, West Penn titlist; Mrs. S. F. Wadsworth, and Betty Abernathy — along with Mrs. H. W. Christie, of Butler; Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, and Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, are playing in the women's national championship, which opened today, at Buffalo.

The annual championship of the new Woschengo Club also was in progress at the Schenley Park links, Mrs. Margaret Curry, municipal titlist, being the defending champion.

Tomorrow, more than 75 local golfers will participate in a large field at the Riverside Golf Club, Cambridge Springs, in the fight for the annual Northwestern Pennsylvania golf championship, which is sponsored and supervised by the West Penn Golf Association, with George A. Ormiston, secretary, directly in charge d'affaires. A most successful title event was anticipated.

The curtain comes down on one-half of the outdoor boxing activities in the Pittsburgh district tonight, when the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock will wind up its 1931 campaign with a show headed by a 10-round battle between Paul Pirrone of Cleveland and Tiger Joe West of Pittsburgh.

West has been a consistent winner recently, so much so that the promoter heeded [illegible] to a clamor for one of own talent to test him after he had cleaned up the locals. [illegible] bout with Pirrone originally was set for last Wednesday night, but was set back to tonight when Pirrone developed a cold and asked for a postponement.

The bout is the biggest opportunity West has been offered so far and he is primed to make the most of it.

Billy Holt, local Negro welterweight, battles boy Kay Lyle of Canton, O., in the eight-round semi-final. Jimmy Kelly, North Side southpaw, meets Matty Oldach of Erie in the second bout, and Tiger Joe Clark, South Side Negro lightweight, is paired with Jimmy Reilly of McKeesport in the opener, set for 8:45 o'clock.

At the [illegible]

Teddy Welch of McKeesport has been signed to box [illegible] of Canton, O., in the eight-round semi-final to the [illegible] Tiger Joe Randall battle at McKeesport Wednesday night.

[illegible]

Buck McTiernan is due back some time this week from his long sojourn on a farm near Lancaster, Pa.

[illegible]

Joey Goodman, who boxes Tony Herrera in the main bout of the opening show at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, is a good drawing card in many spots, but a bout in which he was to box Bei Mitchell in Cleveland, his home town, last week was called off when the gate totaled less than $1,000.

AT BOWL TONIGHT

PAUL PIRRONE . . . HE MEETS TIGER JOE WEST

Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, who boxed here a few times as a welterweight, makes his first appearance as a middleweight in these parts tonight, when he boxes Tiger Joe West, of Pittsburgh, in the main bout of the final show at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. He is noted as a hard hitter.

NEW PRO KING WINS PRAISE OF JONES

By BOBBY JONES

The Only Golfer Ever to Win the U. S. and British Open and Amateur Titles in One Season and Referee of the Final Match in the P. G. A. Championship

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 21.—In addition to winning the Professional Golfers' Association championship here Saturday, Tom Creavy contributed a performance in golf which was beautiful to watch. In entertaining a large and appreciative gallery Creavy displayed rare control of practically every shot and gave a marvelous demonstration in his work around the greens.

Bobby Jones

And Denny Shute, who lost to Creavy 2 and 1 on the thirty-fifth green, did about all that could be done except win.

It was really a treat to watch these boys hit the ball. Creavy kept his nose in front all day long from the moment he took the lead by holing a 12-footer for a 2 on the third hole. Shute was always behind, but always fighting and playing some brilliant golf on his own account.

SCORES TELL STORY

The scores in a measure speak for themselves. The morning totals of 73 for Creavy and 76 for Shute were very good for a final round, yet even so the golf was really better than that. Each player had a ball out of bounds on the last hole. In the afternoon Shute was out in a brilliant 34 and Creavy was only one worse. When the match ended Shute had a 4 left for 71 and Creavy for 72.

Performing the perfunctory duties of referee, I of course saw every shot. It seemed to me that the two players compared about this way: Shute was 15 to 20 yards longer off the tee, but Creavy was a good bit straighter. On the medium and long iron shots the two were about equal, but Shute held a big margin in pitching.

This really was the only weakness I could pick in Creavy's game. He displayed a tendency to hit too much under his pitches, taking them near the top of the blade. The flight of his short shot never appeared under control.

SUPERB AROUND GREENS

Around the greens, in chipping and recovering from rough and bunkers, Creavy was superb. I think that his work in this department was just about responsible for his winning. On the greens the two were about equal, which is as high praise as could be given either one. I don't believe I have ever seen more deadly putting anywhere.

It was a great match to watch. The crowd, which always plays such an important part, was well-behaved and perfectly managed. The two boys were hitting their shots well and hitting them promptly, and they gave a putting exhibition worth going miles to see.

Business Leaders Look to 1932 for Improvemen

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE FAILURE OF SEASONAL gains in business activity to make an appearance during the past month leads to the belief that little change in the trend will take place before the end of the present year.

Bankers and corporation officials are extremely reticent about commenting on future prospects. Few of them, however, see any ground for marked changes in business activity for either good or bad over the next three months. Most of them are looking toward the early months of 1932.

There have been no recent developments on which to base an opinion. Most of them believe that some definite indication of a change in trend may be shown in the new year.

Depression Lasts Two Years

THE CURRENT SLUMP in business is no more severe than several of its predecessors of the past 50 years, but it has run for as long a period as any of them. Business has been on the skids for two years. This fact alone is being used by some businessmen as a basis for the prediction that a turn toward better times cannot be far off.

They also remind us that the end of previous severe depressions was marked by several months of drifting business, such as we have had this summer, then an almost imperceptable improvement in a few lines which gradually spread to all the major industries. They remind us, also, that pessimism was at its most acute stage at times when improvement was close at hand.

Institute Sees Turn

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE of Finance does not agree with the general opinion that we shall have to wait for 1932 for gains in business. This organization said in its last bulletin:

"Business activity in August declined to a level below that of 1921, a level 54 per cent below normal.

"This decline has caused a general feeling that there will be no business improvement in the fall months of this year and that the start of any general improvement will be deferred until the spring of 1932.

"This reasoning does not seem logical to the Institute. Briefly consider the present position of the iron and steel industry, as one of the industries most substantially affected by the depression. At between 25-30 per cent of capacity the industry may be said to be operating at practically an irreducible minimum. While the demand for iron and steel is of a type that can be deferred, even here absolute necessity for replenishment ultimately develops. Without question, stocks of steel on hand are now the lowest in years.

Enthusiastic About Future

"Having reached a condition of what might be termed minimum operation, then, it can be readily seen that, in distinction to the past two years, a situation now exists which may well lay the basis for a definite improvement in activity this fall.

"A brief glance at the index of business activity shows that in the past it has been absolutely impossible for business to long remain at any such level of activity as now exists. Unless one is willing to scrap the United States it is only possible to be more enthusiastic about the future long-pull trend of business activity than it has been possible to be, in 10 years."

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

SILK INDUSTRY GAINING

Signs of revival of activity in the silk manufacturing industry are developing. The number of mills doing volume business on velvets, failles, satins and semisheers is steadily gaining, the industry reports. Mills which have been operating part time are now running full looms or overtime and are rushing to take advantage of the current spurt in business.

FLOOR COVERINGS ACTIVITY

An improved tone in the buying of felt base coverings and linoleum is reported by manufacturers and wholesalers. The gradual firming of prices during the past year is making sale of such merchandise far more profitable for the retailer, say those in the trade, which accounts in part for the increased interest in those quarters.

TEXTILE STRENGTH SEEN

Louis D. Goodall, chairman of the Goodall Worsted Company, says a return of the buying public to better textile values is strengthening conditions in the industry, particularly the movement of quality products. People have been buying prices instead of products, he said, but now are beginning to pay more attention to quality.

SAFETY CAR-SILICA GEL

Safety Car Heating and Lighting Company has made arrangements with Carrier Engineering Corporation and Silica Gel Corporation in development of Silica Gel for refrigeration in railway transportation. For some time Safety Car's experiments with Silica Gel have paralleled to some extent those of Carrier Engineering.

MARKET LEAPS UP AFTER DIP AT OPENING

Early Losses of 1 to 7 Soon Replaced by Gains of 3 to 8; Rail Shares Lead

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP.)—The forces of world wide financial unrest converged upon the New York stock market today, but were repulsed spectacularly in a history making session.

With the Paris Bourse the only other prominent exchange open for business the New York market was the principal exchange upon which the world could liquidate securities. Officials of the exchange were beseeched from many cities at home and abroad to refrain from opening for trading. Officials insisted, however, that the United States could and should maintain an open market for securities regardless of what happens elsewhere. They did act to forbid short selling temporarily.

STRONG RALLY

After tumbling 1 to 7 points in the first hour the share market staged one of the best rallies in weeks, many principal shares rising 3 to more than 8 points above last week's final prices. The advance faltered for a time at midday, but quickly pushed up again under leadership of the rails. United States Steel was supported at the start and eventually showed a gain of more than 5 points. Reading Railroad, a thinly traded issue, advanced more than 25 points. Atchison converted an early loss of 3 into a gain of more than 8.

Miscellaneous issues showing gains of 3 to 6 included American Can, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio and others. American Telephone regained a loss of more than 5 and sold up moderately.

RATE RAISE RUMOR

The vigorous upswing in the rails was accompanied by much gossip in brokerage circles over vague rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission would shortly grant an increase in freight rates.

Selling was in huge volume during the first half hour, and exceeded a million shares for that period for the first time since June of 1930. Nevertheless, trading was orderly and there was no parallel to the conditions of either June, 1930, or November, 1929. The day was not without adverse news, including suspension of a small brokerage house, and banking trouble in Pittsburgh, but these developments were mild in contrast to the bad news that has been absorbed in earlier stages of the two-year bear movement.

POOL DENIED

Wall street buzzed with rumors that strong banking support had been thrown into the market, but leading bankers emphatically denied that any pool had been organized similar to that of the market crisis in 1929. They pointed out that the public is largely out of the market, and brokerage loans reduced to the lowest levels in years, so that the situation is scarcely comparable.

Expressions of confidence in Great Britain by J. P. Morgan and other prominent bankers checked exaggerated fears as to the significance of the British lapse from the gold standard. Bankers said that the British difficulties placed a new responsibility upon America as the leading money market of the world. They did not look for further dumping of foreign securities in these markets, such as recent Canadian selling of American Telephone, pointing out that foreign capitalists would now be desirous of investing money here.

LOAN ATTITUDE AIDS STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Strong support was accorded the New York stock market this morning during the early selling wave by the constructive stand taken by Wall street banks relative to loans on security collateral. Prior to the opening stock exchange officials called up several of the leading banks and asked what their attitude would be toward the calling of loans. Assurances were given that the banks would follow a liberal policy in this respect.

Spindle Activity Lower in August

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—The Department of Commerce announces that, according to preliminary census figures, 32,611,022 cotton spinning spindles were in place in the United States on August 31, of which 25,622,526 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 26,836,262 for July and 25,814,188 for August, 1930.

New York Banks Well Able To Meet Emergencies In Stock Market

General opinion among New York bankers is strongly opposed to the closing of the stock exchange under any circumstances. Leading bankers state that banks in New York were never in such a strong position as they are today. They have tremendous excess reserves with the Federal Reserve Bank, whose resources at the moment are practically untouched.

In view of the extensive decline that has taken place in securities during the past two years the banks consider the technical position of collateral underlying loans very strong, with brokers loans down to $1,300,000,000 and only $200,000,000 being carried by others. The New York banks can safely undertake to take care of the stock exchange situation.

Much of the selling that resulted in recent precipitous declines through the list was plainly of necessitous character. One of the heaviest margin calls made in many months was reported to have gone out in the mails Friday night. Brokers admitted their margin clerks had had an unusually busy day, but the belief was expressed that in view of the limited extent of brokerage house participation in the market, as indicated by the currently low level of brokers' borrowings, the major portion of such demands for margin presumably went to bank customers, who had switched their accounts out of brokers' offices during the period of high money rates two years or so back.

The current phase of the decline has now carried the market, as measured by the generally accepted averages, down to approximately the low levels prevailing in 1925. Only one group, the public utilities, remains appreciably above the low levels for that early period, with the extreme weakness in the rails, now ruling near the low levels prevailing in the late 90s, operating as an offsetting influence in the composite figure for all stocks. As measured by the Standard Statistics Company index, the market has experienced a drop of about 65 per cent from the 1929 peak. Industrials show an extreme drop of 63 per cent, rails 70 per cent and utilities 62 per cent, taken on the basis of last night's closing prices.

Wall street is showing much interest in the meeting of directors of the Reading Company scheduled for September 24 in view of the prospect that they may decide to cut, or pass, the dividend. It was pointed out in financial circles that the company may pay common dividends out of surplus, but that it has been the policy to pay dividends on all classes of stock out of earnings of the previous year.

Heavy selling has come into Dupont at times in the past week or so. In one or more sessions, the trading has been nearly as large as in an entire week previously. Many of the movements in Dupont have been in sympathy with the action of General Motors. While it is true that the company's holdings in the motor concern are large, many students maintain these fluctuations should not be the only market influence. Dupont's earnings, according to some interests, have been satisfactory, and reports have been heard of good scale buying on the set-backs.

Rumors supposed to have emanated from amusement circles are that an extra dividend of $1 a share may be paid on Loew's, Inc., before the end of the current year. Nothing has been heard from responsible interests on the subject. The belief prevails that the talk may have resulted from estimates that earnings of the company this year would be in the neighborhood of $7 a share. That would justify something special being done for stockholders.

Lackawanna Road Places Rail Order

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The Lackawanna Railroad has placed an order for 3,000 tons of 130 pound steel rail with the Bethlehem Steel Company to be rolled at its Lackawanna plant in Buffalo the week of October 19. The order is in addition to one for 7,500 tons already laid this year.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway is inquiring for 55,000 tons of rails, the Chicago and Northwestern Railway for 30,000 tons, and the Erie Railroad for 26,000 tons.

GOLD STANDARD OPERATIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The gold standard of exchange is normally in use by virtually every civilized nation of the world. It is predicated on the fact that paper money of a country's bank of issue is redeemable in gold on demand.

The suspension of gold payments in Great Britain means that the Bank of England is not bound now under an act of Parliament of 1925 to buy gold bullion of stipulated standards for three pounds, 17 shillings, 10½ pence per troy ounce. The act of Parliament in effect resulted in the British pound sterling being equivalent normally to $4.86⅝.

In the British foreign exchange market recently with the pound sterling available below its gold parity, in relation to other currencies, it has been profitable for banks to acquire sterling pounds in the market, convert them into gold at parity and then convert the gold into other currencies by exporting the gold.

The pound sterling was pegged in New York during the war at $4.76. It reached this artificial height by means of securities sale of dollars held by British citizens. In 1919, it was decided to remove the support and the sterling dropped, until finally in 1919 it hit a new low of $3.19.

The gold standard has been adopted by most every country since the war.

GRAINS TUMBLE TO NEW LOWS

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Grain prices tumbled fast today after a little hesitancy at the start. Stop loss selling led quickly to new low price records both for wheat and corn. Wheat fell more than 3½ cents a bushel and corn more than 2 cents before showing any material rally. Suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain was the sole immediate factor. Opening unchanged to ⅝c lower, wheat afterward dropped all around. Corn started unchanged to ½ off and later underwent a general setback.

LONE STAR GAS DROPS AND RALLIES

Selling Meets Resistance On Stock Exchange Here; Industrial Issues Steady

The Pittsburgh Stock Exchange list withstood the shock of the world-wide financial disturbance today with leading issues showing a fairly steady tone. Lone Star Gas, leader of the local market, was called upon to absorb moderate offerings, but did so in the early market on a back-down of about 2 points. Western Public Service followed Lone Star into new low ground, but both rallied later.

The industrials fared better than the fuels in the forenoon. Pittsburgh Plate Glass actually advanced a point at the opening, while several others, including Blaw Knox, Allegheny Steel and Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, held steady. Virtual suspension of short selling on the "big board" and the fact that the strongest financial interests in the country were exerting efforts to prevent undue commotion aided in rallying the New York market after the first flood of selling had been taken.

SILVER MARKET TAKES SPURT

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The temporary abandonment of the gold standard by England helped the price of silver today, and the metal advanced 1½ cents in the New York market to the highest level reached since July.

Silver was quoted at 29¼ cents an ounce compared with 27¾ at the close Saturday. There was a similar rise in London, where it advanced over the week-end from 12⅞ pence to 14⅜ pence.

Dealers here said the advance was attributable to the heavy demand for Chinese exchange following the 2-cent advance in Shanghai taels and the possibility that India may be forced to follow the lead of England and abandon the gold standard. They said such a step would be a very bullish development for silver.

COTTON UNEVEN AT DECLINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Cotton opened irregular today at a decline of 3 to 15 points under active general selling which was attributed to the unsettling influence of the financial developments in Great Britian over the weekend.

The temporary suspension of the gold standard caused general confusion as to values, and the sharp advance in the Liverpool market was regarded as reflecting a readjustment in differences caused by the anticipated depreciation in Sterling. December contracts here sold off to 6.18 and March to 6.55, but offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering and there was said to be some buying here against sales in Liverpool to undo old straddles at the increased differences.

Trading continued active after the call with fluctuations nervous and irregular but prices at the end of the first half hour were holding within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing quotations.

The buying against sales in Liverpool continued active until the close of the English market and the rally, from opening declines carried the market up to 6.49 for December, and 6.79 for March, or about 8 to 9 points net higher. After the close abroad, the buying tapered off, however, and the market at midday was less active with prices holding fairly steady at reactions of about 10 points from the best, making the general list 1 to 2 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 21.—Cotton—Spot—Small business done; prices 44 points higher; American strict good middling, 4.95; good middling, 4.60; strict middling, 4.35; middling, 4.20; strict low middling, 4.05; low middling, 3.85; strict good ordinary, 3.65; good ordinary, 3.35. Sales, 3,000 bales, including 2,300 American. Receipts, 200, all American. Futures closed very steady: October, 3.84; December, 3.86; January, 3.90; March, 3.96; May, 4.03; July 4.08.

Westinghouse Gets Big Condenser Job

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has received an order for the largest synchronous condenser ever sold, it was announced by the Commonwealth Edison Company. Westinghouse engineers said the condenser would have 50 per cent more capacity than any now in use.

Steel Prices.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Steel prices per 100 lbs. f. o. b. Pittsburgh: Blue annealed sheets, hot rolled, $1.70; galvanized sheets, $2.90; black sheets, hot rolled, $2.40; steel bars, $1.60.

Forbes

Many Encouraging Signs Of Upturn in U. S. Business.

By B. C. FORBES

ELSEWHERE THERE can be read today and every day in the newspapers enough unfavorable news and gloomy opinions to satisfy even the most hopeless pessimist. Now, suppose we scan the horizon for halfway encouraging signs and developments—without, of course, implying for a moment that very real happenings of a disturbing nature have not been occurring in Britain, in two or three other foreign countries and also at home.

B. C. Forbes

THE NATIONAL Cash Register Company has resumed dividends.

Universal Pictures has restored wages and salaries to boom levels.

Commercial failures are fewer.

Somewhat better retail trade is reported.

New England in general records distinct improvement—one old established company did more business last month than in any other month in its history.

The commodity price level has about held its own.

Last week only one basic product, cotton, touched a new low level for the year.

There was quite remarkable expansion last week in bank clearings.

Consumption of electric power and natural gas make a reassuring showing.

The woolen industry has enjoyed a boomlet.

The cotton textile industry has improved its condition.

The rubber industry is more cheerful—one company reports increase of 47 per cent in tire sales this year over last year.

Ford has called back many thousands of workers, other leading manufacturers are preparing new models, larger orders for steel and other materials are being placed, and the prospect is that automobile sales will do substantially better in the final quarter of the year.

BROKERS LOANS decreased $54,000,000 last week.

Total brokers loans are now only 18 per cent of their maximum before the crazy speculative boom burst.

Leading corporations report an impressive gain in stockholders.

American investors are acquiring at bargain prices bonds and stocks which are being thrown on this market by panicky foreign holders.

Financial leaders who heretofore have urged caution, are now more disposed to purchase securities—although it should be added that, until contemplated wage reductions have been effected, concerted support may or may not be forthcoming.

AMERICAN PRODUCTION, by and large, has been so drastically curtailed that it is now running below actual consumption.

Scarcity is thus being created.

Even modest resumption of spending cannot fail to have immediate stimulating effect on manufacturing.

IN WALL STREET undiluted pessimism has become just as rabid as undiluted optimism was before the grossly inflated boom burst.

IN MEMORY OF FATHER (DAD) BAKER

He had full faith in his God above
Where all is sweet with heavenly love;
He knew when he left this land[illegible]
That in heaven with his Maker he was going to dwell.

He closed his eyes in peaceful sleep
For he knew his soul the Lord would keep,
And he knew he was going to the land of rest
Where he would be numbered with the Blessed.

So let us not forget a good word to say
For Dad, who left us four years ago today.

Although we miss him and always will,
For the place he left vacant cannot be filled,
But a glad remembrance we can recall
When we look at his picture on the wall.

Sadly missed by his seven sons and one daughter and all his grandchildren and [illegible].

Ernst Refrains From Telling Experiences of War

CHAPTER X.

Willy's home is nearest. He waves gaily across the street in the direction of the little house. "Cheero, you old horse-box! Home is the sailor!"

We propose to wait for him, but Willy refuses. "We'll see Ludwig home first," he says, spoiling for fight. "I'll be getting my potato salad and my curtain lectures soon enough."

We stop a while on the road to spruce ourselves up so that our parents shall not see we have come fresh from a fight. I wipe Ludwig's face and we take off his bandage to cover up the traces of blood so that his mother may not be alarmed. Later, of course, he will have to go to the hospital and get his bandages renewed.

We arrive without further disturbance. Ludwig still looks rather the worse for his drubbing. "Don't let that worry you," I say, shaking him by the hand. Willy puts a great paw on his shoulder. "Sort of thing might happen to any one, old boy. If it hadn't been for the wound, you'd have made mince meat of them."

Ludwig nods to us and goes indoors. We watch to see that he manages the stairs all right. He is already halfway up when another point suddenly occurs to Willy. "Kick next time, Ludwig," he shouts after him. "Just kick, that's all! Don't let 'em get near you, understand me?" Then well content, he slams to the door.

"Like to know what's been up with him the last few weeks," says I.

GREETED BY RELATIVES

Willy scratches his head. "It'll be the dysentery," he suggests. "Why otherwise—well, you remember how he cleaned up that tank at Bixchoote! On his own, too. That was no child's play, eh?"

He settles his pack. "Well, good luck, Ernst! Now I'll be after seeing what the Homeyer family's been doing the last six months. One hour of sentiment, I expect, and then full steam ahead with the lectures. My mother—Oh boy, but what a sergeant major she would have made! A heart of gold the old lady has—in a casing of granite."

I go on alone and all at once the world seems to have altered. There is a noise in my ears as if a river ran under the pavement and I neither see nor hear anything till I am standing in front of our house. I go slowly up the stairs. Over the door hangs a banner, "Welcome Home," and beside it a bunch of flowers.

Synopsis

Ernst, a schoolboy when he enlists, tells the story of a group of war comrades who march home when peace comes. They hear of the German revolution en route, are disbanded, and go on by train to their home city, which they reach in a downpour of rain. At the station the men separate. Ernst walks away with Lieut. Ludwig Breyer. Revolutionaries, spying the officer's insignia, attack the two, but are put to rout by the giant Willy Homeyer, who joins them in the nick of time. Then the three walk on together toward their homes.

Now Go On

They have seen me coming already and are all standing there, my mother in front on the stairs, my father, my sisters—Beyond them I can see into the dining room, there is food on the table, everything is gay and jubilant. "What's all this nonsense you've been up to?" I say. "Flowers and everything—what's that for? It's not so important as all that—But Mother! What are you crying for?—I'm back again—and the war's ended—surely there is nothing to cry about—" Then I feel the salt tears trickling down my own nose.

We have had potato cakes with eggs and sausage—a wonderful meal. It is two years since I last saw an egg, and potato cakes—heaven only knows.

ASKED EXPERIENCES

Comfortable and full, we now sit around the big table in the living room, drinking coffee with saccharine. The lamp is burning, the canary singing, the stove is warm, and under the table Wolf lies asleep. It is as lovely as can be.

"Now tell us all about your experiences, Ernst," says my father.

"Experience—" I repeat, and think to myself, I haven't experienced anything. It was just war all the time; how should a man have experiences there? No matter how I rack my brains, nothing suitable occurs to me. A man cannot talk about the things out there with civilians, and I know nothing else. "You folks here have experienced much more, I'm sure," I say, by way of excusing myself.

That they have, indeed! My sisters tell how they had to forage to get the supper together. Twice the gendarmes took everything from them at the station. The third time they sewed the eggs inside their cloaks, put the sausages into their blouses and hid the potatoes in pockets inside their skirts. That time they got through.

I listen to them rather absently. They have grown up since last I saw them. Or perhaps I did not notice such things then, so that I find it the more remarkable now. Ilse must be over 17 already.—How the time goes—

"Did you know Councillor Pleister was dead?" asks my father.

I shake my head. "When was that?"

"In July—about the 20th, I think."

The water is singing in the kettle. I toy with the tassels along the fringe of the tablecloth. So—July, I think to myself—July—we lost 36 men during the last five days of July. And I hardly remember the names of three of them now, there were so many more joined them as time went on.—"What was it?" I ask, feeling sleepy from the unaccustomed warmth of the room. "H. E. or machine gun?"

"But he wasn't a soldier, Ernst," protests my father, rather mystified. "He had inflammation of the lung."

"Oh, yes, of course," I say, setting myself upright in my chair again. "I forgot about those things."

They recount all the rest that has happened since my last leave. The butcher at the corner was half killed by a mob of hungry women. At one time, the end of August, there had been as much as a whole pound of fish to a family. The dog at Dr. Knott's has been taken away, to be worked up into soap like as not. Potatoes are dearer again. Next week, perhaps, one may be able to buy some bones at the slaughter yard. Aunt Grete's second daughter was married last month—and to a captain too!"

THOUGHTS WANDER

My sister stops short. "But you aren't listening at all, Ernst—" she says in astonishment.

"Oh, yes, yes," I reassured her, and pulled myself together; "a captain, quite; she married a captain, you said?"

"Yes, just think of it! Such luck!" my sister runs on eagerly. "And her face simply covered with freckles too! What do you say to that now?"

What should I say?—If a captain stops a shrapnel bullet in the nut, he's a goner, same as any other sort of man.

They talk on. But I cannot marshal my thoughts; they will keep wandering.

I get up and look out the window. A pair of underpants are dangling on the line. Gray and limp, they flap to and fro in the twilight. The dim, uncertain light in the drying yard flickers—then suddenly, like a shadow, remote, another scene rises up away beyond it, fluttering linen, a solitary mouth organ in the evening, a march up in the dusk—and scores of dead Negroes in faded blue greatcoats, with burst lips and bloody eyes—gas. The scene stands out clearly for a moment, then it wavers and vanishes; the underpants flap through it, the drying yard is there again, and again behind me I feel the room with my parents, and warmth and security. That is over, I think to myself with a sense of relief, and turn away.

DAILY SHORT STORY

The Philosopher

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Man Loses Much Money in Stock Market Crash

"The day," Mrs. Lorthrop murmured, "is perfect, and here you go, Charles, casting a gloom over everything by telling about poor Jack Hale losing his leg."

Charlie Lorthrop glanced at his wife in surprise.

"The day is just the same, Claribelle. The pond is as blue and the grass as green, the flowers——"

"That's sufficient, you know what I mean, Charles."

Hal Parker nodded sagely.

"An arm would have been much worse, Mrs. Lorthrop. One should be philosophical about such things," he said.

"I suppose so," Mrs. Lorthrop murmured.

"The Philosopher is off again," Wally Hayes murmured to Nell Olmstead.

They were week-ending it on the Lorthrop estate, a score of more or less pleasant people. Lola Lorthrop, only daughter of the host and hostess, was the magnet that drew the younger unmarried male element. Lola had more of a fortune than her wealthy parents, thanks to a doting grandmother.

Also, Lola was a little beauty. She was vivacious, intelligent, charming.

Add to one immense fortune a vivacious charming girl who possesses it, and the combination is perfect, from the viewpoint of any young man seeking a wife and a way out of work and worry.

Hal Parker was one of the young men who had an eye on Lola. In fact, Hal had both eyes on her and Hal believed that he knew his onions and all the rest of the vegetables.

ADMITS DEFEAT

Ivan Holmes and Dirk Carter came up from the Lorthrop private nine-hole course. Ivan was scowling like a summer thunder cloud. Dirk was grinning.

"How about it?" Wally Hayes asked.

"Lost," Ivan confessed, "a sudden tornado or something blew up in a long drive and carried the ball into a sand trap."

"I'm a century in," Dirk agreed.

"Tough luck," Mr. Lorthrop agreed.

"Oh, well," Hal Parker said, with a cheerful grin, "be philosophical about it, Ivan — think how much worse it would have been if you had put up a thousand or so on the game."

"Keep the change," growled Ivan.

"I'd like to give that sap the Royal Raspberry," Wally Hayes murmured to Lola.

"Now, now, Wally, you know that Hal Parker is a very brilliant man, a man who thinks deeply. He is really quite a philosopher."

"So was Socrates," Wally growled, "but the Athenians had sense enough to give him poison."

"You are very unfair," poured Lola.

"All right, my dear Princess—whatever you say goes with me, and I am especially anxious to hear you say 'Yes' to the little proposal I made—that would go beautifully with me. Honestly, Lora, why not decide to make it a life twosome for us? We'd be—"

SEEKS GIRL'S ANSWER

"Hush such nonsense—listen to Hal—he's saying things worth while."

"—and so," Hal Parker was saying, "that is why the Hindus are such a marvelous race. It isn't stoicism, it is just ordinary philosophy. If there is a famine they do not tear their hair and howl against the Fates, they tell each other that it could be much worse."

"That's all right, Parker, for the dam Hindus, who can live on a pinch of rice a day, but by Gad, I'd like to see a Hindu who could be philosophical if he were an American and up against this business depression." John Graves spoke with great feeling.

"I believe you are jealous of Hal Parker, Wally Hayes."

"Be philosophical, Lola dear, how can one be jealous of nothing?"

Hal drifted over and sat down beside Lola. Old Mrs. Stanley came along just then.

"When," she asked Wally Hayes, "do you think the Universal Bank will pay in full?"

"When white crows sing madrigals at sunrise, Mrs. Stanley," he answered, and he knew, for he was one of the men who helped out the state officials in the investigation.

"Oh dear—and I had quite a sum in there."

"Oh well, think, Mrs. Stanley, how much worse it would have been if you had put all your eggs in one basket—the Universal Bank basket," Hal said.

"I suppose so," the old lady sighed.

"How much did you lose in that bank, Mr. Philosopher Parker?" Wally asked.

Lola nudged him.

"Hal is too clever to invest in losing concerns," she murmured.

It was considerably later that Lola and a friend heard Wally Hayes and Bert Cran talking. She heard Hal Parker's name mentioned.

"The old Philosopher gives me an acute pain," Wally was saying.

"You've got to have something to lose, that sap wouldn't have a thing in the world if he didn't have philosophy," Bert agreed.

LOSES RING

Lola was furious. The very idea of knocking Hal Parker!

And at the little dance that night Lola was as cool to Wally as she could be to a house-party guest.

On Saturday Lola forgot to remove an emerald ring. It slipped off when they were swimming in the pond on the estate.

"It's a muddy bottom and I'll never find it," Lola bemoaned, "and Gram gave it to me——"

She turned away, really heartbroken.

"Oh, come now, my dear," Hal Parker said, putting a consoling arm about her, "think how much worse it would have been if you had lost the great emerald necklace."

Lola blinked. She had a vision of her wonderful and famous emerald necklace.

"That's true, Hal — that's true, still, it was terrible to lose my ring."

"Now, now, Lola, that's not the philosophical way to look at it," Hal went on, "just remind yourself that you are fortunate because you might have lost the necklace or been beaten by a thug and been robbed. That will make you see the bright side."

"That's true, Hal. I don't know what I'd do without you and your clever philosophy to cheer me."

Wally Hayes snorted audibly. Lola turned and glared at him.

"Look here, Hal—think how much worse it would have been if Lola had been wearing all of her jewels while in her bathing suit, and if she had plunged in and the jewels were so heavy she couldn't come up and was drowned with her jewels," Wally said.

Several laughed.

Lola walked away from him and joined Hal Parker. Wally went about muttering things to himself. These things were most uncomplimentary to Hal Parker.

And so it went through the day.

That evening when Wally lost $80 at contract bridge Hal Parker was quite cheerful about it.

"Suppose," he said, "it had been a stiff game at a dollar a point? You would have lost more than fifty thousand. That's the way to look at it."

"Listen to that, Wally?" Lola said, patting Hal on his shoulder.

Wally muttered more things to himself.

It was ten the next forenoon when many of the Lorthrop guests were having English breakfast in the big sun-room. Sunday papers had just arrived and were brought in.

Hal Parker had been fixing up marmalade on bread for Lola and whispering words of mingled admiration and wisdom. He picked up a section of the Sunday paper. He started, he stared, he read the item over again.

"Oh!" he exclaimed.

"What is it, Hal dear?" Lola asked.

"Oh! Oh, my good gosh! I'm sunk—I'm terribly sunk—I've lost fifty thousand and more—look. A. X. & H. stock has dropped 40 below par. Oh, this is terrible. Of all the rotten luck! Of all the downright tough luck—"

"Well, well, old top," Wally Hayes said, going up to him, "think how much worse it would have been if you had lost half a million!"

"Don't be a sap, Hayes," Hal growled at him. "I've lost plenty as it is. Of all the damnable, downright tough luck—"

"Philosophize, old Bean, philosophize," Wally urged.

"But deemit it, Wally—I've lost fifty thousand, real money—it's gone—and it's the toughest luck ever."

He paced more and more.

Lola watched him and went out on the terrace. Wally followed her.

ACCEPTS PROPOSAL

"Look at him rave—and he was so calm about other people's tough breaks—oh, Wally, you were right, Hal's philosophy is just a pose."

"Honey," Wally whispered, "say your pretty little 'yes' to my proposal and we can have our own philosophy, we can cuss and weep and bemoan tough luck with no one to chide us and tell us that we are lowbrows and do not know the higher intellectual plane that philosophy brings."

Lola watched Hal pace up and down, his face pale and anxious.

"All right, Wally—all right."

Hal Parker came over, still bemoaning his loss in stocks.

"Congratulate me, Hal," Wally said, "Lola has just accepted me—we're shy on philosophy but we sure know our minds—congratulate me, old Philosopher, and use some of your philosophy to cheer you up over this bit of information."

Hal groaned.

The Falk Decision

There Are Great Possibilities for Good in the Plan to Aid Economic Research

The board of managers of the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation have decided, after a year of study, to use its funds for "such economic research or experimentation as gives promise of helping to improve economic conditions."

This is rather indefinite, to be sure, but there may be an advantage in the latitude permitted by the board's resolution.

The ultimate objective is to find the cause of and devise a remedy for industrial depressions such as that through which the world is now passing.

It is certainly mysterious, as J. Steele Gow, director of the Foundation, points out, that poverty and unemployment should be widespread at a time when the world possesses a wealth of untouched natural resources, great stores of raw materials available for manufacture, mechanical facilities for production which have never been equaled, banks with adequate money to finance production, and millions of men ready and willing to work.

There can be no expectation of speedy results from the research which the Falk Foundation is to help, but ultimately it may be beneficial to the whole world.

It is gratifying that special consideration will be given to economic studies of particular interest to the Pittsburgh district. The demoralization of the coal industry comes to mind as a subject that would fall under that classification.

A Business Stimulant

Wholesalers' Market Week Offers Retailers, Too, an Opportunity to Improve Trade.

Under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce a series of discussions and demonstrations are to be held in Pittsburgh from September 29 to October 2 by wholesale merchants under the name of "Market Week."

The program suggests that this affair, if well patronized, will be of considerable value as a business stimulant.

It offers opportunity to retailers as well as wholesalers to improve their trade; for there is to be a merchandising "clinic" for the special benefit of the former in which they will be given advice by recognized authorities on such subjects as controlling stock turnover, the training of salespeople, sales promotion and advertising, store layouts and modern business practices.

It is to be hoped that all merchants and manufacturers in the Pittsburgh district will co-operate to make "Market Week" a big success.

Tempus Fugit!

It Is Hard to Believe That Many of the World War Soldiers Are Fathers of Grown Sons.

The application filed in Common Pleas Court for a charter for a new organization to be called "the Sons of Veterans of the World War" comes as a shock.

It is hard to believe that many of those boys who marched to the front in 1917 and 1918 are now the fathers of grown sons.

The war is so vivid a memory to many of us that it is difficult to realize that a new generation has appeared on the scene to whom the great struggle is ancient history, studied in school books. Boys are voting this year who were but eight when the Armistice was signed, and who at best can retain but misty memories of the war.

Time flies.

For True Temperance

Finland Soon to Abandon 'Experiment'; U. S. Bar Hits Crime Breeding Laws Hard Blow

Signs increase that prohibition, as a national policy, is doomed to vanish from the earth.

Abandoned as a miserable failure in Scandinavia, in Canada and in Australia, the presumptuous attempt to legislate men into unpopular habits still prevails in two countries only—Finland, and in our own United States.

Finland, it now appears, will soon terminate the "noble experiment." After several years of attempted enforcement, the ENTIRE JUDICIARY of that nation has demanded a change for the sake of LAW AND TEMPERANCE.

Next month a committee of experts will report its findings on prevalent drunkenness. Then the government is expected to submit a revision bill, legalizing light wines and beer, and the Finnish minister of the interior predicts that the bill WILL BE PASSED.

Meanwhile, events in America trend inexorably in the same direction.

Not long ago we had the Wickersham report. Its specious "conclusions" could not conceal the fact that THE COMMISSION ITSELF was AGAINST PROHIBITION. And now comes the overwhelming verdict of the American Bar Association, representing the organized lawyers of America.

With seventy-five per cent of its entire membership voting the Bar Association unequivocally demands repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The actual vote, officially accepted, was 13,799 FOR REPEAL, and 6,340 opposed.

But even this astounding declaration undoubtedly UNDERSTATES the real sentiment against prohibition. For the referendum on which the lawyers balloted referred only to repeal. And among the 6,340 opposed to outright repeal are surely MANY in favor of MODIFICATION.

In moral effect, therefore, the Bar Association's referendum is a terrific indictment of our crime-breeding prohibition laws.

The Hearst Newspapers stand for temperance. More than a year ago William Randolph Hearst presented to the people in a radio address a true temperance plan—a plan to legalize light wines and beer in this country, and rigorously to regulate the production and sale of pure alcoholic spirits under strict federal control.

In view of the American Bar Association's preponderating sentiment, representative of enlightened and patriotic citizens everywhere, who can doubt that the American people WANT such a plan, instead of sham prohibition, with its lawlessness and political corruption and hypocrisy?

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Woman's "Game"

Any woman can marry any man she WANTS to marry, declares an optimist.

Oh, CAN she? Not if I see what I'm looking at!

On the contrary, any woman can marry any man she DOESN'T want to marry!

Three-quarters of the world's prize husbands were merely "consolation prizes"—if they but knew it. Yet they will all fondly tell you how "the little woman caught me."

But if the little woman had been trying to catch him, she would have missed her aim.

The moment a woman sets her heart or mind on a man, she loses control of her steering-gear and gets her signals mixed. A man can sense her designs and see her headlights a mile off, and his one impulse is to sprint for the safety-zone.

The moment a woman takes a man seriously, she loses her balance, her perspective and that unselfconsciousness which constitutes "It." That's why a man always marries the woman who doesn't take him seriously.

* * *

Oh no, it is not the woman who makes up her mind to marry a man who gets him; it is the woman who "just can't make up her mind." It isn't a woman's "resolution" that wins him—it's her IRRESOLUTION.

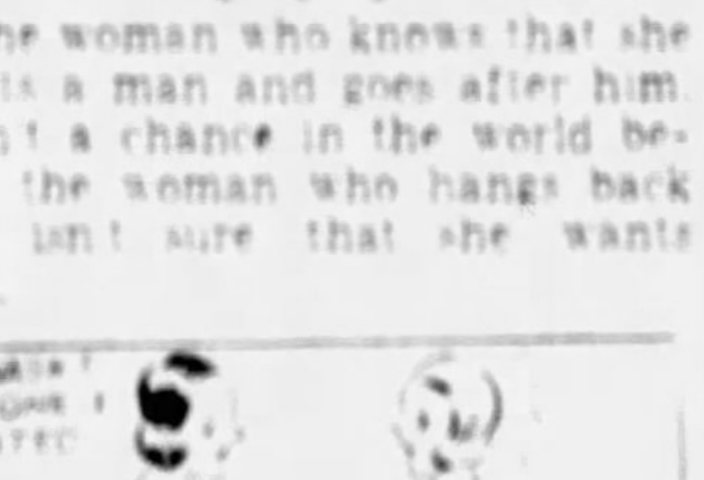
The woman who knows that she wants a man and goes after him, hasn't a chance in the world beside the woman who hangs back and isn't sure that she wants him.



When a man goes looking for love, he is not looking for devotion, but for a GAME. Adventure, difficulty and uncertainty are the things that give the game piquancy.

And, alas, when a woman really cares about a man, her "game" is always rotten. She can't be simple, natural, gay and insouciant. She either slops over like a soda fountain or poses like a mannikin. She shows her hand, drops her poker face, and forgets all her best tricks.

A woman can always marry the man whom she likes just well enough to enjoy having around—but not well enough to miss when he isn't around. The man whom she greets with glad surprise—and parts from without any particular regret.

* * *

A woman can marry almost ANY man except the one she WANTS to marry. That is woman's tragedy!

The fewer acquaintances a man has, the less he is bored.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out and twigging Will Lengel jockeyed him into an apothecary to stand treat for a breakfast platter which he did with fair to middling grace. Yet seemed annoyed at my constant gazing into the mirror not understanding fine qualities may co-exist with such narcissism.

Back to my chambers and found Clara Walsh and Milton Green skimming through names in our guest book and surprised to find so many no longer of this world and many others once illustrious passed to obscurity. And we thought the most distinguished signature was that of Gypsy O'Brien.

Working until vespers and then with my wife, poor wretch, to a public and talking for a moment to Joseph Urban, the John Cunos of Chicago and Gene Crawley. And saw George Creel and had the usual start, always taking him for King Alfonso of Spain.

Temperament, as emotional voltage in the theater, has about vanished. The nearest approach to such explosiveness was Chevalier when he first came to America. But he got over it. Certainly there is no one today on the boards whose didoes suggest Mrs. Leslie Carter, Richard Mansfield, Leo Dietrichstein or the more recent Jeanne Eagels when ballooned into full blown pouts.

* * *

Perhaps the most temperamental of all in her hey-dey was Fritzi Scheff. She demanded and got more of the luxuries of trouping than any other person of her time. She was the true autocrat. Stage hands could not smoke while she was in the theater. Whenever she came before members of the company or her manager they immediately jumped to their feet at attention.

* * *

Her salary—$1,600 a week—was the highest ever paid a comic opera star up to that time. She carried a portable dressing room, with "Fritzi" in electric lights over the door and which was placed near the wings so she would not have to walk up and down stairs. All her entrance ways were carpeted and an expansive red rug was unrolled for her from the limousine to stage door. She traveled with her own automobile, chauffeur and footmen—at the expense of her producer, then Charles B. Dillingham. Her cigarets were of extraordinary length and gold tipped, imported by the cigarettist to Czar Nicholas.

Miss Scheff in later years appeared in vaudeville and about two years ago her revival in "Mlle. Modiste" took on a flash of furor. Many predicted she would not only have an extended New York run but a long and successful tour. But neither materialized. Today Miss Scheff occupies an apartment in E. 58th street in the winter and a home in Connecticut in summer. She is 48, looking much younger, and has dropped the dynamic theatricalisms that made her stand out so vividly during her reign.

An uncertain cub on a certain paper in Cincinnati was sent to interview Miss Scheff at the old Havlin. She happened to be in the dining room with her manager, Nat Roth. Approaching her, he inquired: "Miss Scheff, I believe?" the legend goes. She gave him a quick glance, replied: "What you believe does not interest me" and went on talking to Roth. Miss Scheff told inmates in later years such starchiness was put on like a glove and did not portray her real attitude toward the public. It was merely a part of her act.

Helen Morgan's pop-eyed style of coiffure—a disarray of frizzle and bangs—dates back to an unhappy period in childhood. She regarded herself as an ugly duckling and when neighborhood children primped and beribboned their hair, Miss Morgan just touseled hers with her hands and made faces at anyone who didn't like it. In time people began to comment on her "cute headdress." She has never changed the style and it has proved one of the distinguished trade-marks of her millenium moments on Broadway.

I have a crome of an aunt taken 32 years ago that many believe is Helen Morgan in costume. This was the aunt who expressed surprise by saying: "Law me, poo!"

LISTEN, WORLD

—By Elsie Robinson—

She was loitering ahead of me, down a crowded department store aisle. I tried to pass. Nothing doing. Although a fairly small woman, she managed to block the whole space by her zig-zag dawdling. Exasperating! There she was—holding up at least five busy people. What a nuisance loiterers were, in this swift, modern world!

At least I settled down, waiting a chance to pass. Then I noticed that she was carrying on a conversation with a woman friend. An aggrieved conversation. About her husband. The old line—she was a Neglected Wife. He treated her like "so much furniture." Never told her a word about his business. She could help him so much with his business if he would ask her advice, but he wouldn't. He acted just as if she Didn't Know Anything.

She didn't know what had come over him. He'd been so crazy about her when they were married. And she'd kept herself up. "You know, Ida, everyone says I don't look a day over 25, even though I am 39." But he never noticed her any more.

Probably there was Some Other Woman. In fact, she was practically positive there was. No, she didn't have any proof, but there was that secretary in the head office where he worked—Pretty? Well, maybe some would call her pretty but personally she couldn't see a pretty thing about her. She was one of those quiet, cold creatures—"Mark my words, Ida, you can never trust a woman like that."

But Edward thought she was wonderful. He was always praising her. Once he even asked her why she couldn't do things the way Miss Brown did. Imagine! . . . expecting his wife to do things like a stenographer! That was the kind of a man He was!

Well, he wasn't going to make a fool of her. She'd show he couldn't get away with stuff like that. Taking the best years of her youth and then treating her like an old shoe—.

On and on she went, in her shallow, peevish tones, voicing the standardized wifely complaint—"Why doesn't he notice me any more?" And I thought how clearly she answered her own question.

There she was, loitering along aimlessly as her grandmother had loitered WHILE AN EXASPERATED WORLD, FULL OF PEP AND PURPOSE, CHAFED AT HER HINDERING HEELS. And it was plain that her mental processes were as aimless and undisciplined as her heels. She thought "all over the lot" as a child would think. Or, to be more accurate, she rarely thought—she simply emoted. Her mind was filled with vague dreams, futile rebellions, trivial conceits. She knew nothing of grown-up ideas and conditions . . . nothing of the modern world in which her husband functioned. As for advising him—it was a joke! She wasn't fit to advise a lady bug.

Of course, there was some excuse for her. She had never worked. She had passed from her father's home to her husband's without contacting reality. But many wives, with the same handicap, become well balanced citizens and competent partners for their husbands. She hadn't tried to change herself—hadn't thought in necessary to qualify. A man should stay enamoured if his wife "kept herself up"—that was her simple creed. But by "keeping up" she meant only her clothes and complexion. It had never occurred to her that a wife should stay mentally fit.

Pitiful, inadequate little creature—how could she, or her innumerable kind, hope to compete for a man's interest, against the clever, efficient, well-balanced women of his working world. She was as useless and almost as great a nuisance, as the gilded gimcracks that filled grandma's what-not. While she loitered, the modern world, including her husband, swept past and forgot her. And it was all her own fault. But could you tell her that? TRY AND DO IT!

Problems of Prohibition

—By Brand Whitlock—

(From the "Little Green Shutter," by Brand Whitlock, published by D. Appleton & Co.)

(Copyright, 1931, by Brand Whitlock.)

WE undertake to prevent the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. We can't, as a matter of fact, prevent the sale of it; but even if we could, we can never prevent the manufacture of it, for nature herself is in the business of manufacturing it under a law of her own which we are powerless to amend or repeal. And that is the law of chemistry by which sugar, under certain conditions, ferments and turns into alcohol.

There is no way to stop sugar doing this. All the zeal of moralists and reformers; and all the amendments that may be added to the Constitution, and all the statutes that may be enacted by Legislatures, and all the decisions that may be handed down by the courts, can never abrogate this inexorable and remorseless law. Sugar will keep right on turning into alcohol as long as the world lasts, and so long as it does, men will drink it, and some of them, at least, will get drunk.

Men do not drink because they are wicked. They drink because drinking enables them to escape temporarily from reality. They drink for the same reason that a servant-girl goes to the cinema, or the tired businessman reads detective stories, or the weary scholar works a crossword puzzle, or a Chinaman smokes opium, or an East Indian eats hasheesh. It helps them to forget; it takes them out of themselves, and transports them for a little while, at least, to a blissful realm of illusion and romance.

WE say "drunk as a lord," not because lords are habitually drunk, but because drink has the magical power to make a man feel like a lord. The psychologist has discovered this same truth, and William James says:

"The sway of alcohol over mankind is unquestionably due to its power to stimulate the mystical faculties of human nature, usually crushed to earth by the cold facts and dry criticisms of the sober hour. Sobriety diminishes, discriminates, and says no; drunkenness expands, unites, and says yes. It is in fact the great exciter of the yes function in man. It brings its votary from the chill periphery of things to the radiant core. It makes him for the moment one with truth. Not through mere perversity do men run after it. To the poor and unlettered it stands in the place of symphony concerts and of literature; and it is a part of life that whiffs and gleams of something that we immediately recognize as excellent should be vochsafed to so many of us only in the fleeting earlier phase of what in its totality is so degrading a poison. The drunken consciousness is one bit of the mystic consciousness, and our total opinion of it must find its place in our opinion of that large whole."

And so, since alcohol is here, and here to stay, the wisest thing to do about it is to find out the most satisfactory terms on which we can live with it, and reduce its ill effects to a minimum. No unprejudiced person, I fancy, will pretend that the present method does this, and we shall never make any progress or have any peace until we change it.

ONE of the unfortunate results of the present situation is that where we had only one problem before prohibition, we now have two. We have the old problem of the saloon and intemperance, and we have prohibition.

The only practical solution of the problem of intemperance lies where it has always lain, in the old, slow, tedious process of education and development of character.

The solution of the other problem, of both problems indeed, lies in the principle of state rights and local self government. This principle was working fairly well, and it was under its operation and its name that the Anti-Saloon League won its only real and permanent victories. Under it many towns, counties and even states, where public opinion was overwhelmingly in favor of the anti liquor laws, were free not only of saloons but of many of the evils of intemperance.

THE out and out prohibitionists complained, it is true, that the system was not ideal because, under the decision of the Supreme Court in the original package case, it could not interfere with interstate commerce, and prevent the shipping of alcohol into dry territory. And it was to meet this objection that Congress enacted statutes that deprived such shipments of federal protection. Not that this satisfied them; far from it.

National prohibition itself could not satisfy them long; they must have international prohibition. Their ideal was still unrealized, because alcohol was shipped into the country from abroad, so that it was necessary to alter international law, and load the dice in our favor, and obtain the special privilege of the 12-mile limit at sea, and that sort of thing.

At any rate, under the old system the conflict of opinion and interest between Main street and Broadway, between provincial and metropolitan ideas of morals and manners which had gone on for so many years, was, fortunately local, and confined within the limits of each state, with the State Legislature as its arena. So long as the problem was left to local experiment there was some chance of finding a reasonable or approximate solution. Indeed, the cause of temperance was growing all the while—a fact that made it easier, no doubt, for the prohibitionists to push their measures to extremes, since men who no longer drank became indifferent and paid no attention to what was going on.

AT all events, the problem was in a fair way of being solved, so far as it ever can be solved. But when in headlong impatience it was precipitately transferred to the national arena, it became more difficult of solution because other and more important issues were raised.

To begin with, an arbitrary and inflexible police regulation had been jammed into the Constitution, the equilibrium of government had been disturbed, its original theory had been altered, and new, unfamiliar and unpopular agencies had to be devised to put the new theory in operation.

Each change, in order to be effective, demanded another and more radical change, so that logically, in the long run, the process might conceivably not come to an end until the state governments had been overthrown and the governors superseded by prefects appointed by the President.

ONCE OVERS

—By J. J. Mundy—

Why so cross and irritable?

Possibly your income has been reduced, the profits from your business seem to be dwindling.

That is not an unusual experience at this time.

Hard luck, but no worse than thousands upon thousands of others.

Why add to your burdens and to the burdens of those around you who are not in a position to avoid you and your ill humor?

You made "good money" for some years, but it was a result of unusual conditions which you should not wish to see return.

It is not probable that your income will ever be what it was during those years.

Be sensible and accept in a philosophical way that fact that you may never again possess an income you would dare to spend as freely as you did in those fat years.

You went wild like a lot of others and thought there was money for all and no end of it and did not accumulate a bank account when things were flush.

Now you need to control your emotions, be a man, treat others courteously, for they may be suffering losses as great for them as your losses are for you.
